1 - The Definition/Summary

Okay, I was going to explain as much as I could in the description of the Story, but it has a character limit, so its not exactly helping here.

Anyway, Bits and Peices is going to be full of, not one story-line, but-at most-four! Its going to have randomized chapters, so no story will really continue after itslef.

hmm...okay, im trying to explain this as best i can without confusing you. Its basically a collection of mini stories or tales of my Original stories. Each chapter is going to be one of my four tales being mainly told here.

for example; Chapter 2 will be about this one guy who goes to the store, and Chapter three will be about this girl, whos in a different story, and she's talking to her companions. Do you get it?? Each chapter will be a mini tale about one of my four stories! (i hope you get this...!! DX)

Its going to be confusing at first, becasue i may not have many to start with. But gradually it will build up. I am also going to draw some art of the moments that happen in some of the chapters just so i can give you a visual of whats kinda going in in the story.

WARNING!!

The contend on some of the chapters will have some 'Content' on them that might be a little bit innopropriate, so Be Ready!

Ah man, i bet your still really confused...
(i know i am...)

If you want to know more of what i mean, than please, ask me in the comment section below! I will ty do my best to answer whatever questions you have!

Thank You!!

2 - The Misdread Crown and the Top Gold Crown

Keyoshii let out a long sigh before letting the silence start. Sedrey managed to catch a small hint of frustrated relief when he did.

"haha, so even you have some things on your mind as well?" Sedrey chuckled. Keyoshii blinked and slightly turned his head towards Sedrey, "I guess so, yeah." he smiled. "is it so hard to believe?"

"Well, no matter the environment or the spoils, everybody's always got something not so easy going." 'Considering your area of living' he quoted to himself. Keyoshii looked away, gazing as far as his eyes would let him. He took a moment before looking down and opening his mouth.

"Well, if its said that way, then i suppose so." he let out.

"so?? whats got you?" Sedrey sympathized. Keyoshii let out another breath of frustration, letting the silence stop time briefly,

"Sedrey; if the average man looked at me and my tradition of living, one couldnt feel nothing but jealousy and awe. With nothing but those views being peered at me with every new face i meet, its hard to have them understand my view. They all see me as a pampered pup, with no idea of whats really out there. They think i just sit here, surrounded by women and riches, not knowing any knowledge what-so-ever of how life is without the formalities and rank. Within first sight, first meet, and first exchange of greeting, im already a victim of their quiet, shallow judgmental gazes.

"They think im an idiot to those things.

"Not exactly everybody would hear things out through my eyes. They already presume im here just for the sake of being here, and would think that my personal values and views are covered in gold and nothing else. Even the vassals here, though quiet or bursting it may be, think the same thing. Iv'e never really got a chance to correct what they mis-understand. Not even my mother."

Sedrey looked at him, letting his eyes tell him that he had his full attention.

"When i was a child," Keyoshii continued, "I was lavishing in this fortune i had been born with. Everybody loved me; loved the prince. I shamelessly swam in it. Threw it around like there was no tomorrow. I was a still a child, so i knew nothing of the places beyond my mansion. The places of famine and cruelty. At the age of an innocent, i was at the rank of a God. I was already taking my pick of the young girls who were lined up by their mothers, the vassals. I never took anything seriously at the time. Everything was perfect, and everyone promised me that it will be perfect for the rest of my life. I believed them. I believed that i would never find anything in the world that could break me or over rank me.

"...Then I met Annara." The room went quiet. Sedrey quickly looked around the room, as if he could see the echoing words bounce around the hall, the words 'Annara'. "Ra, ra, ra...ra..." was all that he heard when Keyoshii went silent. Sedrey once again let his eyes tell him that his attention was all his still. Keyoshiitook another breath, and continued.

"I met Annara when i was still lavishing bluntly. One day, the head woman told me that the previous Head womans daughter, who went off and got married, was coming for a visit. At the time, i payed no real interest to the history or business of the Head woman, its not what a prince was born to heed attention to. A few days later, a carriage arrived. since i was the 'King' of the place, it was only appropriate for me to greet them. When they arrived, the first thing i seen come out of that carrage, was a young girl with crimson red hair and a white attire.

"I was disgusted.

"I felt this uncontrolable stifning in my gut. with each passing second that i looked at her, i felt like sicking the hounds on her.

"I hated her.

"With all my guts.

"She was followed behind with a woman wearing a violet attire, for whom i was guessing was the daughter of the former head woman. After everyone was all greeted, we headed inside for a dinner that had already been set. Everyone was talking and bonding, as was the Head woman and the visiting woman. I was at the dinner at the time, and sat with them. They talked, shifting some answers to me every now and then, but i never answered them nor looked at them. The only thing that was on my mind, was the crimson haired girl who sit accross form me. I wanted to stab her with my eyes.

"After the dinner was over, the woman and the red haired girl left, promising that they'd come back soon for another visit. After they left, even much longer after they left, i was still feeling that molichious rage inside me. It pushed my anger even more to the fact i couldnt understand why i hated her so much. Why she bothered me so much. I was the King! the likes of one mere girl whos noe even worthy of occupying the thoughts of me! The head woman told me that she needed to talk to me about the visitors. I obeyed, and listened to wht she had to say;

"" The young girl is Annara Kaykona. The Guardian God of this region.""

"I was struck. I froze in that very instant, as time was even crueler to feel like it stopped at the same time.

"How? how could somebody be walking higher than me? I thaught i was the ruler, the ABSOLUTE ruler!! How did somebody pass me without me knowing about it!?

"It wasnt untill short after that i found out that i was born to rule the castle for the Kaykona's resource. I was appaled. I was not born for the glory of being the King...no...I was born to serve a higher family. To be another houses 'money-maker'...

To serve somebody"

It went quiet again. Keyoshii rubbed the back of his neck, dipping his head back and raising his chin to straiten his back. a few goosbumping cracks and he relaxed again. Closing his eyes, he took a deep breath, and further continued his story. "Annara and her mother came for visits more frequently, sometimes staying over for days. I still felt resentment towards Annara, giving her dirty looks and not going near or talking to her when she approched me. I couldnt do or say anything discouraging, because the was the Guardian God. The head woman told me that it was for the best party that he not upset her 'absolute-ness'.

AUTHORS NOTE!!; hey, im pretty sure your getting bored and wondering WTF is going on, right?? well, im kinda getting into it, so please,
forgive me if this is too dull...

ANYHOO!!!

"As the visits grew more frequent, i started to notice that Annara was always wandering around the gardens alone. I recalled that she would always go there at whatever chance she could. When she was there, she would just walk around, untill the sun went down. I wondered what was up with her, and how could she do something so rediculously boring all day. Was she anti-social? No, that coulnt be. She was the Guardian God, and even they are naturally born with poloticial knowledge. So then what was up with her? It baffled me till the end. I decided to keep watch on her, trying to see if i could find an answer. So ecerytime she left for the gardens, i would silently follow behind her, observing her for as much as i could, hoping i could find the answer.

"After a while, i forgot what my original reasons for spying on her were, and began watching her out of pure curiosity. My angry, frustrated "Why?"s became little gleems of joy and amusment. The things she would do while i watched her brang a small warmth to my heart. I noticed that sometimes she would stop every now and then and crouch, pulling her chest to her legs to give them a short rest from walking around. After she had a brief moment of rest, she would stand up, and continue her all day stroll around he garden trails. I noticed that, until much later, that i was starting to enjoy watching her. I knew nothing of her what so ever, yet i felt as if she was a companion of mine for as long as i could remember.

"I was enthralled by her.

"Her very presence and being stirred me till no end. She was always on my mind, every day and night. This girl was no longer my worst enemy. She was now the center of my universe. I wanted her to never leave my sight. I wanted her to be my Sun, my Moon, My Queen..."

Sedrey's eyes went wide.

"...heh...I guess in the end, the ignorant King Boy fell in love with the God..."

3 - Remember?

Sedrey.

Do you remember?

Remember that day we first met? That day that seemed so endlessly long ago.

I do.

I still remember how the trees blew that day. How I ran and ran for days, until my feet were practically bleeding. How I fell from exhaustion, then waking up to you covering me with your coat, feeding a fire. You were so free of violence and blood. No scent of needless killing emanated you.

You were a clean spirited human, just helping a wounded woman.

Remember how you freaked out when I woke with a jolt, thinking I was being attacked. You were so adorable. Remember how I thought of you as a pest when we started traveling together? How you always couldn't keep your mouth shut when we'd walk. How you'd be so clumsy and tripping over anything we passed by.

I do.

Do you remember? When we were in a tight spot, and you were willing to give your life for me? What was it you went on a rant about?? about how you couldn't let me die, not because I was the Guardian God, but because I was a woman. You were such a stupid, strange human. So willing to throw your fragile human life away for me...

You were so stupid. So stupid I wanted to hold you close and make sure you were out of harms way forever.

Its all my fault.

Its my fault that in the six short years we spent together, you were submerged in this horrid fate you breath now.

Do you remember, Sedrey?

Do you remember when you told me on the day of our wedding, that if you died, you'd not care because you'd be dieing for me?

I...I remember.

You told me you would try make me laugh everyday, and make sure I was happy. You would give your life for it.

You were so stubborn that way.

...Do...

...

I remember the day you died...you looked at me with the final light of life you had in your face, and smiled. You told me its not my fault.

I wanted to beleive you, but i couldnt. My everything was gone, just like that. You were no longer in my reach. You were no longer there to smile at me, asking me how my day was.

You were gone...for, what i thaught would be forever...

Then...

The that wreched worm did something to you that made my blood boil for an eternity...

She made you, reluctantly, breath once again. She soiled your pure heart with hate and darkness. The defiled your sence of kind justice, with merceless brutality.

She braught you back with the full intent of killing me...

My Sedrey...please, dont cry...

Please, just close your eyes now...Like last time, I will be here with you. You are not alone.

Sleep now...Sleep, and please my dearest, may the Gods before me grant it an eternal peaceful rest for you...

I love you.
