Chapter 1 - I just feel like dying

1 - I just feel like dying

A long-haired, very dark brown almost black cat walked along the sidewalk of the huge city, the moon made a purple sheen to her pelt. Lunar's brown eyes were glazed over in sadness and pain. "Icy, I wish you was here." She meowed towards the sky, as people passed her. Her friend Icy had left some days ago and it just ripped herself inside, her pelt was unkept and her tail dragged behind her. One night, it was raining and her pelt was plastered to her. She walked along the bridge, the water lapping up. She looked down, her eyes misty. She felt like jumping in, just ending it there. She looked over and closed her eyes, tilting forward so to fall to her death. Before she did, she heard a voice calling her. "LUNAR! Lunar please don't!" Cried a familiar voice. Lunar turned to see a white cat with black spots and hazel-blue eyes. "Icy, I can't believe it's you!" Cried Lunar, tears streaming down her cheeks. Icy nuzzled closer to her friend, comforting her. The rain kept coming down as Lunar's eyes locked with Icy's. "Icy, I can't believe that I wanted to die, I just felt like ending it all." Icy's comforting lick on her ear made her feel better. "I know Lunar, I was just afraid I would lose you forever." She cried. The two friends stood up and walked back towards the city.
