Like the Rogue, a Wizard is basically clueless when it comes to Armor, all they know are Tomes and Spells, not the difference between Chain Mail and Plate Mail. Still, that doesn't mean a Wizard won't find better gear to wear mid-match. In general, Wizards tend to always be wearing some variation of Dark And Darker Gold :

Of course, they can also equip any armor that isn't specifically tied to a certain class, but Wizards generally should be looking at the stat bonuses on armor for anything related to Knowledge rather than Defense.

Do Wizards Need Weapons?

Still, there are a few options for a Wizard if it comes to melee combat, and there are also some options when it comes to the catalyst they use to cast Spells. For both, these options are best:

Spellbook: All three spellcasting options, the Staff, Spellbook, and Crystal Ball can all have a variety of extra benefits on them depending on rarity buy Dark And Darker Gold Coins . But, at a base level, the Spellbook is the catalyst option players seemed to gravitate to. This spell-casting catalyst increases a Wizard's movement speed by the most overall, which actually makes a big difference.
