Chapter 1 - Him

2

1 - Him

The air around me was empty, though somewhere in my ears I could hear this ringing, the static noise that I had always been able to hear.

Fear caught my breath, holding it away from me and teasing me as my throat caught against it, tears welling in my eyes,

"I'm afraid.."

The night was empty, dark, cold and suffocating while also huge and long beyond any freedom in the world, it was despairing for me. The molecules could have been heard as they bounced around, but my heart beat thumped loudly as if it was going to explode.

And then I felt his warm moist breath against my neck, seductively calling to me to give up. My knee's gave out, but his arm was around my waist holding me up softly but strongly at the same time. I wanted to give in so desperately I forgot about needing my breath, I forgot everything except trying to accept the promise whispered in my ear,

"You could live forever."

My body convulsed as I jumped awake soaked, the dream I had the night before lasting in my mind like a fog, and as I glanced around my room I told myself it was only a dream. Just a dream.

I stood walking around my room in just my black Pj's, it was okay, I was alone. I went to the mirror to brush my hair and noticed a red spot on my neck.

Abruptly the memory of his lips against my neck, sucking at my skin flashed before my mind's eye, I rubbed my neck where his soft lips had been and pondered. "How did something from a dream appear like this?"

I felt myself blush at how I had enjoyed it, how I had wanted so badly to give in to his seductive call,

"What's wrong with me?" I wondered.

"What am I even thinking? I don't even know what he meant by I could live forever.."
