Finding Truth

You see me during the light,
You can see me as a man.
But my true form comes out at night,
Just as I had planned.

When I hunt alone,
My fur blows back.
My fur is of a grayish tone,
My eyes are pits of black.

Blood is of my favorite tastes,
Biting into prey.
Leaving nothing left to waste,
I hunt before the day.

Finding truth in all of this,
Is harder that you know.
My form now has a fatal kiss,
But I have to lay low.

For now I have to hide,
But soon it will be nice.
For in the shadows I abide,
But soon in paradise.
