1 - Part 1: Itachi's Mistake

He was the last demon left to kill. At first I was glad that Itachi was there to see my crowning achievement. That would later become my biggest regret. We had been attracting his attention for about a week. This time we didn't feel like running away.

I thought that the lord of the demon clan would be like the others but I was sorely mistaken.

"Ha, I'll be able to kill one of you now and save the other to watch their brother suffer," he sneered.

"If you so much as lay a hand on Sasuke, I'll bestow upon you the most horrid execution I have ever done!" I said in the most venomous voice I had ever come up with.

"It's almost comical hearing a thirteen year old try to sound menacing. Thank you for the information, I didn't know that Sasuke was your brother."

"Oh crap!"

"Maybe I should go after him first."

"YOU STAY AWAY FROM SASUKE! I'LL KILL YOU, YOU STUPID DEMON!"

"How could a overly ignorant Uchiha like yourself call a demon like me stupid."

"SHUT UP! YOU'LL RUE THE DAY YOU MESSED WITH NIA UCHIHA!"

"Nia, be careful," said Itachi.

"Don't worry, I deal with these guys all the time. Just try not to get in my way."

"Are you sure you can handle him all by yourself?"

"You're just going to have to trust me on this one. I've got a new technique I want to try out anyway."

"I trust you, I just hope you know what you're getting yourself into."

The demon didn't give me another second to think before he ran straight toward me. I guess it's a talent of mine to be ready for anything because I reacted immediately. He didn't want to waste time.

Fortunately, I was able to dodge him long enough to make the handsigns for my Living Darkness Wolf Mother Juitsu and my Living Darkness Screaming Vulture Juitsu.

I sensed that something was wrong the second I activated my Dark Sharingan. I could feel someone's fear but it wasn't the demon's. My Dark Sharingan saw big, hairy spiders and defeat. I was looking at my own fear and i was not doing well.

What was his power? My memories of that time were blurred. I remember something pink wrapping around my hand and I remember seeing Itachi jump out in front of me but that's all I remember.

I woke up in the hospital an hour later. Sasuke was sitting beside my bed drumming his fingers frustratedly on the bedside table. I didn't really have time to wonder how he got into the village of haunts.

"What just happened?" I asked sleepily.

"Rene told me you were in the hospital. I was hoping you could tell me what happened," said Sasuke.

"I don't really remember what happened but I wasn't alone. Where is Itachi?"

"He's in another room, everyone else went to see him. I wanted to stay so you wouldn't be alone when you woke up."

"Is he alright?"

"I don't know. Apparently he's alot worse than you are."

"Am I very badly hurt?"

"I don't think so. Gonan said that three fingernail-sized maggots were found in your left hand. He also mentioned that they were eating away at your flesh."

"That sound appetizing."

That made some of my brother's worry lines go away. We both smiled but it seemed like it would hurt both of us to laugh. I turned my head toward the door. I waited anxiously for someone to come in and tell me what happened to Itachi. We sat in silence for what seemed like forever.

2 - Part 2: The Hospital Mystery

After a while the others came back. Rene was crying, Gonan was cursing and yelling, and Eskerna Sensei was trying to calm them down. I had never seen Gonan as mad as he was then. I was dying to know everything that happened in excruciating detail. I didn't like what I heard. It sounded very suspicious.

How is he? I asked dreading the answer.

I don't think you're going to like this, Nia, said Eskerna Sensei.

Please tell me.

Well, Gonan says that there's something the nurses aren't telling us. The only thing we know for sure is that he's dead.

How did this happen?

I can tell you exactly how it happened, said Gonan, The nurses told us that the maggots killed him but I don't buy that for one second. They left the three of us alone in his room until they found out from their head surgeon that I was a medical ninja. However, in the short time we were left alone I was able to get a closer look and I can assure you that the cause of death was most definitely not maggots.

Gonan, do you think someone in the hospital could have done it? I asked seconds later regretting my inquisitiveness.

There was evidence to suggest that someone had stabbed him in the heart in such a way that he would die instantly. The maggots leave your body when your heart stops but they had only reached his shoulders. That means that someone stabbed him after he got to the hospital.

I was too afraid to cry. There were so many unanswered questions. I don't know what would have happened if Sasuke hadn't stayed with me. It seems almost certain that if I would have been left alone, I would have met the same fate. I was so horrified that I could barely breathe. That was only the second time I had ever been defeated. How many more times would this happen?

Defeat wasn't the only thing that I was afraid of. Itachi had always been there to protect me. How could I survive without him?

Suddenly, I had forgotten all about being scared. Itachi didn't just die, someone killed him. I figured that it had to have been that damned demon. I had to get Sasuke out of the village and send that demon back to where he came from. Just thinking about the dead corpse of the last demon made an evil grin appear on my face.

Nia, are you even listening to me? I heard Gonan ask.

He must have been talking the whole time. I wonder what he said. I didn't answer him.

Nia, what the hell? Gonan stuttered.

I had completely forgotten where I was. My Sharingan was activated and I didn't realize it. I ripped off my IV, grabbed my t-shirt, and walked out of the room.

Where the hell is she going? I heard Rene ask on my way out of the hospital.

Rene would never understand why I acted like I did. She didn't believe in anything she couldn't see. She didn't understand why I was defending a clan that was basically dead. I didn't believe they were really dead. I believe in the village of naught.

3 - The Village of Naught

The village of naught is a place where people go after they've been killed. In a place between the village of haunts and the village of naught people who haven't died of natural causes are brought back to life by corpses like Gonan. A lot of people believe in the village of naught but most people don't believe.

When I was half way to the place where the demon was I decided that I needed more information before I fought him again. While I was on my way home my cell phone rang. I was Gonan.

"Where are you, Nia?" he asked.

"On my way home." I said quietly.

"Good, we're waiting for you. Listen Nia, I was thinking that now might be a good time to visit the village of naught."

"I was kinda thinking that too. Do you think we should bring Rene?"

"I think we need to bring her. Do you think Resha will be there?"

"I'm positive that she'll be there."

Resha was Gonan's older sister. She was a corpse like he was. A while after she became a corpse, Resha mysteriously disappeared. Everyone believed that she was recruited to help save lives in the village of naught. Of course Rene was dead set against it.

When I got home the only thing I worried about was the fact that Sasuke was still in the village of haunts. Then I thought that it might be good for him to see Mom and Dad again. Rene threw a fit when she heard that we were going to the village of naught. I wasn't really in the mood to take her crap.

"There is no way we can go to a place that doesn't exist," Rene whined.

"Rene, I have no problem with you not believing in the village of naught, but you are not gonna complain about this. We're not leaving you behind either," I said frankly.

Normally I would have been nicer because she's my best friend. She knew how it was when I was mad and left the argument alone completely. Normally she would have provoked me but she could tell that something was different. I wasn't just mad, I was completely and thoroughly pissed.

"I won't argue with you, Nia," Rene squealed.

"Then we better get going," Eskerna Sensei said.

That made all of us jump. Eskerna Sensei hadn't said anything since I arrived. She was becoming more menacing and elusive every day. Maybe Tsunadae was right about her becoming more like her father. If you don't know what I'm talking about, then maybe you should read Eskerna Sensei's story.

4 - Trouble in the Village of Naught

We were within a mile of the village of naught when I realized that Sasuke wasn't with us. I asked Eskerna Sensei, Rene, and Gonan but they hadn't realized it either. We did a little backtracking and found Sasuke lying in the middle of a clearing playing dead.

Tears formed in my eyes when I saw him. I was sure that the demon had attacked him. No one else would have done it. Gonan confirmed my assesment when he released eight pink maggots from Sasuke's legs and crushed them (OMG, I meant the maggots, not his legs).

I don't know why but time was of the essence. Eskerna Sensei and I went ahead while Gonan and Rene stayed behind to fix Sasuke's legs. I really wanted to stay with Sasuke but Rene insisted on staying. Se was probably trying to earn my trust or something like that.

We arrived at the village of naught to see Itachi leaving in a hurry. I barely had enough time to comprehend what I was seeing before he spoke.

"Nia, what are you doing here?" he asked.

"We came to bring you back," I gasped.

"Are you alright, Nia?"

"I thought nobody ever left the village of naught."

"If nobody ever left, then nobody would know about it. Almost nobody leaves."

"Why are you leaving?"

"I'm in love."

"What?!"

I couldn't believe what I was hearing. Itachi was in love?! I didn't have much more time to wonder before I fainted. Did Itachi really just say he was in love? No...he couldn't have, it was only a bad dream. I'm the only girl in his life anyway. Could he have fallen in love with RENE?!!! NO! I just refuse to believe that my brother would fall in love with a spazz like Rene.

I woke up in a room that seemed strangely familiar. There were two beds but I was the only one in the room. The room that I was in seemed to stir up my fondest memories. Then it hit me. It looked just like the room that Sasuke and I shared when we were kids. Of course it couldn't have been that room unless I was still unconscious and dreaming.

I sat up and felt my forehead. Ugh, what a headache! After I pinched myself a few times I realized that I wasn't dreaming. What kind of messed up reality is this?! Just when I thought it couldn't get any weirder, my mom walked in. She ran over to me and squeezed me so hard that I could barely breathe.

"Thank goodness you're awake!" she exclaimed.

"Am I dead?" I gasped.

"You don't look dead to me. If you were, I don't think you would be here right now."

"Well, if I'm not dead and I'm not dreaming, then where am I?"

"You're in the village of naught, Nia."

"I knew that. I just had to make sure. Has there been any sign of Gonan?"

"I was kind of hoping that you wouldn't ask about that just yet. Since you have, I think it would be better if your friends told you what happened."

Mom led me out of the house where Eskerna Sensei, Rene, Gonan, Itachi, and Dad were carrying on a conversation. I was not happy to see my father. The last thing I remembered about my father was that he tried to kill me. I could tell that Rene was as pissed as I was but for a different reason. I noticed right away that Sasuke wasn't with them.

"Hey guys, where's Sasuke?" I asked semi-frantically.

"Nia there's something you should know about that demon," Gonan said quietly.

"Gonan, please tell me that friend of yours was not Sasuke," Itachi said doubtfully.

"The demon knows where the village of naught is. On our way here he attacked us."

"I didn't ask for the whole story. Can you just answer my first question? Where is Sasuke?"

"He was badly injured and I couldn't heal him on the spot so I..."

"I know you didn't take him to the hospital."

"I didn't take him to the hospital if that's a bad thing."

"I guess it's partially my fault for not telling you. If things don't go the way you expected, I'll try not to get too mad at you."

"Nia, what are you talking about?"

"Itachi's death was no coincidence. They may have told you that it's rare for anyone to die from a maggot infestation but they were lying. You know as well as I do that you'll only die if they reach your heart. We know that itachi was stabbed but until now we didn't know who did it. I have figured out who did it. The head surgeon at the hospital is the real last demon. If you brought Sasuke to the hospital, then he's probably dead."

"If that's how it is, then it is my fault. Rene said we should stay but I thought we should tell you what happened."

"He didn't trust me!" Rene whined.

"I didn't know you were sensing the future!"

"You should have been paying attention!"

"Alright, that's enough." I said calmly.

Normally I would have thrown a warning shot between the two of them. It was probably my optimistic nature that made me so calm. I wasn't worried at all. One way or another, Sasuke was going to live. We were all silent because I was deep in thought. Suddenly, I broke the silence.

"Itachi, how did the demon get the maggots to listen to him?" I asked loudly.

"They were in his hair," said Itachi. (ew so unbelievably disgusting)

"Go keep an eye on Sasuke. I'll meet you at the hospital tomorrow morning."

"Where are you going?" asked Eskerna Sensei.

"I don't know."

5 - The Spoils of Victory

The demon was watching his cousin's funeral. She wasn't killed by me, she committed suicide. He was standing outside of the graveyard thinking about the rest of his clan. He swore then and there he would kill me if it was the last thing he did. I heard him loud and clear because I was standing right behind him.

"Oh, a graveyard is a perfect place to die," I joked.

"Why would the prey seek out the hunter?" he asked as he turned around.

"Honestly, the hunter isn't that scary."

"You have no idea how scary I can be."

"You're just too damn proud to know when to shut up!"

The demon scratched his head. I took that as a sign that it was time to put my plan into action. I threw a kunai that cut right through his long hair. The little pink maggots started crawling out of his hair. I put my foot down to crush one of the stupid creatures and the demon screamed.

There was no bite to him after I got rid of his maggots. It was either the maggots or his hair. He was so weak that I only had to use Living Darkness Wolf Mother Juitsu. I have no idea how he defeated me before. I have no idea how he killed Itachi. The maggots must have been most of his power.

I rarely left the body of a demon the way it was after I killed it. Usually it would be torn apart by mother or picked apart by screamer. This was one of those rare times when I didn't have time to wait for my pets to eat the demon. I discarded the dead body in a nearby empty casket and casually walked by the graveyard like nothing happened.

Empty caskets were often placed outside of graveyards in the village of haunts. It was probably because there was much conflict in our village and a lot of people died. If there was a person who died that really didn't have anybody to attend their funeral, then they could be dropped off in one of the empty caskets. It was going to be a while before I fought the last demon so I decided to pay my dear boyfriend a visit. I hadn't been to the leaf village in about a year. Kiba would be happy to see me. I thought it would be better if my friends didn't know where I was going. Rene would get mad if she knew that she had missed a chance to see Neji.

It didn't take too long to get to the leaf village and it took less time to find Kiba. It took him longer to find me. He was hanging out with his best friends. I had to find a way to get rid of Naruto, Choji, and Shikamaru. That wasn't really hard to do.

My plan was to send mother out to steal Naruto's headband. Everyone except for Kiba would chase after her because mother's appearance would mean that I was nearby. The plan worked, well, it sort of worked. I got up to the part where everyone left but Kiba when it got messed up.

Kiba finally spotted me sitting on a fallen log not very far from where he was standing. What made that spot so terribly unromantic was the fact that it was the very spot where I had died the last time I came to the leaf village. The log I was sitting on was the same log I got stuck under. I was so excited to see Kiba that I ran over and hugged him.

"Did you miss me, Nia?" he asked.

"Just a little bit," I laughed.

"So are you back for good now?"

"Sorry, I don't mean to tease you. My mission is nearing its end though. Truthfully I'll never really be back for good. My next mission deals directly with your clan so we'll be together a lot."

"You said your mission was almost over the last time I saw you. That was over a year ago."

"This time I really mean it. I should be back in about a month."

"you'll be fourteen by then."

"I know.....Kiba, do you want to know the real reason why I came to see you before my mission was over?"

"I would, very much."

"Uh..."

"Who are you?" ugh! Naruto was back.

I turned around and scowled at him. "Do you have short term memory loss or have you just lost it in the past year?"

"What in the world is that supposed to mean?"

"Is that supposed to be your name?" Shikamaru asked. I didn't really like him.

"Didn't Sasuke tell you why he left so suddenly? That would have refreshed your memory."

"Oh now I remember. You were that girl that passed out before."

"Actually I didn't pass out, I died. I'm not just 'that girl' either I'm Nia Uchiha."

Shikamaru looked like he was having an epiphany.

"I've heard my sister mention your name before."

"Your sister hasn't dropped dead and stayed like that for a day anytime this year, has she?"

"Actually she did something like that a while back. It was very troublesome, we had no idea what was wrong with her. She was perfectly fine the next day. How did you know about that?"

"I know she's a dark clone."

"Noone was supposed to know that. How did you find out?"

"It's not always about how I know, it's more like why I know. I know because she is my dark clone. I still can't believe you didn't make the connection when you heard my name. Nia Nara told me you were smart."

"He Nia, are you alright?' asked kiba. He looked worried.

"I'm fine, why do you ask?"

"Sasuke left to visit you in the hospital. What happened?"

"It wasn't bad, I'll show you later. I am thankful that he came because if he hadn't, I'd probably be dead. If I were you I would be less worried about me and more worried about my older brother. He was left alone to die in a hospital bed while everyone else worried about me."

"But he's evil!" Naruto screamed.

"You're wrong! The real Itachi isn't evil! The man you are thinking of is not my brother. You have never met my brother."

Allow me to explain. Itachi never enjoyed playing the bad guy so he asked me to teach him how to make a dark clone. Itachi finally had an opportunity to leave the bad guy business and get on with his life. There was one huge problem. The dark clone wanted to be the real and only Itachi. Also we have the problem that if the Akatsuki find out that Itachi is fooling them, they'll kill him. I had to explain that to Naruto also.

"Did Sasuke really leave because I was in the hospital?" I asked suddenly bewildered.

"that's what Naruto told us," Kiba answered.

"How ironic!"

"What's ironic about that?"

"I'm leaving tomorrow because he's no better off than Itachi was when we were brought to the hospital. I don't even know if he's alive or not."

After that alot of things happened. Shikamaru left to talk to his sister and Choji followed him. Naruto went to tell Sakura about Sasuke. Kiba and I went our seperate ways but we promised to meet again before the night was over. We had to. There was still something that he needed to do for me.

That night I was looking for a nice big tree to sleep in when I sensed someone's presence behind me. I didn't turn around because I knew who it was. I almost laughed when I felt his arms wrap around my waist. He was strong but what girl doesn't love a guy with some muscle. I still didn't turn my head but I tried to rest my head on his shoulder. He was too tall and my head wouldn't reach.

"I thought you were afraid of spiders, Nia," Kiba whispered.

"I'm not a kid anymore," I laughed.

"If you're goanna grow up, will you promise not to grow out of me?"

"I promise I'll never grow out of you."

"Is this why you went to the hospital?" he was feeling the three holes on my then gloveless hand.

"Yeah, I was lucky to only have three. I was only attacked once but Sasuke was attacked twice. I only saw his legs the first time. He had four on each leg."

"What is it?"

"It doesn't matter. Whatever juitsu the attacker used will never be used again. He was the only one who could use it and he's dead now."

"I just remembered, you never told me why you came."

"Oh, I don't know if I want to tell you now. You'll just laugh at me. I don't know why I brought it up"

"C'mon, I won't laugh at you, I promise. Just tell me."

"You only say that because you don't know what it is."

He let me break away from him and I sat down under a tree. If you haven't guessed yet, I wasn't feeling like my usual optimistic self. I wa only crying a little though. Kiba sat down next to me and tried to put his arm around me but I pushed him away.

"Gosh Nia, what is your problem?!!" Kiba exclaimed.

"I don't know just go away!" I sobbed.

"I'm sorry, I didn't mean to yell at you. I only wanted to help. Please don't send me away. Just tell me why you came. I swear on my life that I won't laugh at you." (Rene said that if he were a good boyfriend, he would have dropped the subject to try and find a way to calm me down. I told her where she could take her lame dating tips.)

I didn't relpy.

"What is it? Do you not love me anymore?"

"KIBA!"

"Woah!"

I forgot all aobut being mad and buried my face in his chest. When I did, I nearly knocked him over.

Okay, so I was crying my eyes out.

"Alright, I'll tell you," I said quietly.

"You don't have to if you don't want to," said Kiba. I didn't actually hear him say that.

"I came because I wanted to be with you and I wanted you to give me my first kiss."

"Well, why didn't you say that in the first place?"

"You're not laughing at me?"

"Why would I laugh at you?"

"Because you're a goofball."

"And you're not?"

I couldn't help but laugh. I was glad that my head could reach his shoulder. I didn't really like being short. My head didn't have time to get to his shoulder before he pulled me into a passionet kiss on the lips. I was actually shocked, I didn't think he would do it. However, shocked as I was, I did kiss him back.

We talked for a while but I don't remember what was said. We both fell asleep right there. In the morning I reluctantly left like I had planned to. I was in no hurry to see Sasuke and in even less a hurry to leave Kiba. I didn't even want to know what happened to Sasuke.

I came to find out that the others had made it just in time and Sasuke was alive. I also found out that the girl that Itachi was in love with was the corpse that brought him back to life. Itachi had gone to save her on the same day I went to the leaf village. Turns out that the girl he met was Resha Fairchild, Gonan's older sister.

Even though it had already been two days, Sasuke hadn't waken up yet. Even though Sasuke hadn't woken up yet, everyone was going to abandon him because Itachi and Resha were going to get married the next day! I thought it was a little early but they must have felt some deep connection when she brought him back to life. They understood when I refused to attend so I could stay with Sasuke.

Resha was a very interesting person. She didn't seem to have a personality except for that she agreed with everything Itachi said. Her eyes were often hidden behind her long, black hair which had a snow white feather hanging among its strands. She was dressed a lot like Gonan with a skirt instead of shorts. She also wore a faded apron with bloodstains on it.

The next day, the day of the wedding, I was left alone with a still sleeping Sasuke. It was kind of creepy sitting there with no one to talk to. I don't think it was because of the silence or the loneliness because I wasn't alone. Someone else had come to see Sasuke that day. I peeked around the other side of the bed and saw Gina staring straight at me.

"Gina, what are you doing here?" I asked.

"I came to see Daniel and I heard a nurse say that Sasuke was here," she whispered.

I stood straight up and sighed. Daniel was Gina's older brother. He had been bed ridden for a few years. He always brought it upon himself to take on other people's pain which was hurting him mentally and physically.

"How is he?" I asked dreading the answer.

"Well, I tried to act as happy as I was able and he seemed fine. He told me that you brought Itachi back from the village of naught and he wants to see you."

"Do you think you could keep an eye on Sasuke for me while I go see Daniel?"

"I won't even blink."

"Thank you, Gina."

I knew I could trust Gina to watch Sasuke and not leave until I returned. Those two always tended to play favorites. Gina's favorites were Itachi and Sasuke. Itachi was more used to her than Sasuke was and Gina was Itachi's favorite too. I was Daniel's one and only favorite. He always seemed to be a little more healthy when I was around.

As I turned the corner into Daniel's room I saw his face light up. He knew everything I was going to say but he wanted to hear me say it to him.

"Hello Daniel, are you doing alright today?" I asked cheerfully.

"Gina already told you that," he laughed.

"Rene and Gonan are close to finding a cure for your problem. Did you know that?"

"No, but what happens to me doesn't really matter. What really matters is what happens to everyone else."

"It would make everyone a lot happier if I could bring you home."

"Then maybe I do want to be cured."

"Gina said there was something you wanted to talk to me about."

"She told you I know about Itachi. I know about Sasuke too. Don't worry, he won't die."

"You haven't met Sasuke yet, have you?"

"No. When he wakes up can you bring him here so I can see him?"

"I think that might be possible."

"Good because I also want him to see me."

"Oh Daniel, just think, pretty soon you'll get to see places other than this dark, smelly hospital room."

"I'm more excited about spending more time with you, Nia."

"I should go. Sasuke still isn't very fond of Gina and I want to be there when he wakes up."

"Alright, see you later."

I gave Daniel a hug and went back to Sasuke's room. Gina was still there and she was trying not to blink.

"Is he waking up yet?" I asked.

"He's been stirring. I think he's going to wake up soon." Gina whispered.

"Tell me when he does."

I sat down in the chair that I had been sitting in and looked out the window. There wasn't much to see. It was the same place I had lived in since I was four. The only thing that ever changes is the people.

Sasuke was stirring again. I didn't think that he would wake up so I continued to look out the window.

"Please don't kill me," Sasuke said weakly.

"Why would I kill my brother and best friend?" I asked.

"Oh Nia, it's you. I thought you were someone else."

"You thought I was the head surgeon who had come to stab your heart. Have you found out what she is also?"

"She's the last demon. I think they are planning something. The demon with the maggots is the head surgeon's younger brother. He didn't want to kill us, he wanted to send us to his sister."

"If they were planning anything, it won't be carried out. I killed the demon with the maggots a few days ago."

"How long did I sleep?"

"I don't know, but we need to leave this place as soon as possible. We can talk somewhere else."

I turned to Sasuke and he climbed out of bed. We made our way back to my house with Gina trailing behind. I don't think the demon brother and sister were planning anything together. I thought that the head surgeon was planning something by herself. Neither of us could have predicted the intensity of the challenge that waited in the month to come.

6 - The Beginning of the End

Two weeks later team seven was called for a special mission in the village of naught. What was very suspicious about this mission was that the people who requested the mission also requested team seven. The people who requested the mission were a brother and a sister named Tristin and Lilly. It wasn't quite clear what they wanted team seven to do but it was clear that they were hiding something. When they got to the place where they were supposed to meet the brother and sister Sasuke realized something about the mission. He had a strong feeling that the last demon was somehow involved with this mission. He was right about that and Itachi and I were hidden there somewhere.

They were at a small potion shop that was attached to a small house. There was an old witch sitting at the counter searching for something. Kakashi turned to the three Genin.

"you should just leave the talking to me," he whispered.

"Can I help you?" asked the old witch.

"Yes, uh we're looking for Lilly and Tristin."

"Oh, you must be the leaf village ninja. They'll be down in a minute."

While they were waiting for Lilly and Tristin, Sakura, Naruto, Sasuke, and Kakashi looked around the shop. Sasuke saw something behind the counter that looked strangely familiar.

"What is that?" he asked.

"All of the things behind the counter are special requests. Most of them are poisons," said the old witch.

"Well what is that one? It looks like something my sister would use."

"That is fear poison. If you add your DNA to it, it can make people fear you more than anything."

"That sounds like something my sister would use."

"Are you Sasuke Uchiha?"

"How did you know that?"

"I'm friends with your sister. She talks about you all the time."

Sasuke didn't have time to inquire further because Tristin and Lilly were ready. They weren't how any of team seven expected them to be. Lilly was a little girl, about six years old with blonde pigtails and big blue eyes. Tristin was an adult. There was nothing much to say about his appearance. Now I have to tell you a secret. Hidden deep within those cure blue eyes and those blonde pigtails was me! Just call me Nia Uchiha, master of disguise. I managed to turn Itachi into Tristin too.

Don't tell Sasuke okay. He suspects us! Sorry, I'm really hyper right now. We had a three way contest to see who could eat the most sugar cubes in ten seconds! (Rene: She's acting like Smeagol! Me:*Gloms onto Kiba* My precious!) OKAY, I'VE HAD ENOUGH OF THIS! *hyperventilating* alright... the sugar is gone...I'm glad that's over. I'm never doing that again. What's worse is that I came in last place.

Itachi and I led team seven to the village of haunts. I know what you're thinking, why did a ninja employ another ninja? I wanted to see how sharp my older brother's eyes really were. I suppose it was a little unfair to use one of my best disguises. Guess what my other disguises were. One of my other better disguises was one I couldn't use until the dog country defeated the cat country. (I'm not sure if I mentioned that they were at war) Probably my best disguise ever is one I'm going to tell you now. it's a huge secret. I'm Hannah Montana. What, can't you take a joke? What if it was true?

Anyway, I didn't plan any of what ensued. It just kind of happened. We had just camped for the night. (It took less time when it was only with haunted ninja because of our secret. I couldn't show our secrets to leaf village ninja but I trusted my brothers.) For some reason Kakashi was not there. It was imminent that one of the Genin would ask the question that everybody in disguise dreads.

The Genin started arguing with each other. It was mostly Naruto and Sakura but Naruto seemed to have a problem with Sasuke too. It kind of scared me. When they were finally done arguing Naruto turned his back to his teammates, Sasuke didn't move from his original position staring into space, and Sakura turned toward me. I could tell she thought I was cute by the way she smile at me.

"Take a picture it'll last longer," I said.

"What's your problem kid?' she asked.

"I don't like being ingnored."

"Well I don't know anything about you. Do you think you could tell me?"

"Uhhh..."

Just then Kakashi showed up. He saved me from crashing and burning.

"Where have you been?" I asked.

"There's a suspicious group camped not far from us. I went to investigate," he said.

"I hope it's noone I know."

"There were three of them. One was dressed all in red and had tiny horns, a speartail, and a forked tounge. She seemed to be the leader of the group."

"She does sound familiar. What about the other two?"

"The second one also had horns but they were bigger than his head and twisted every direction. He was bigger than your average human and his muscles were like none other. He had claws instead of fingers and he was dressed like a Native American."

"That's the most infamous member of the beast clan. His name is Catsbane. What about the third one?"

"I recognized him as Itachi Uchiha."

"That's impossible. Unless...what did they say?"

"It seemed like they were meeting for the first time. What caught my interest the most was Itachi said he was a dark clone and his master camped close to where they were. I didn't see anybody close enough to sense their presence."

"What did the girl say?"

"She only spoke once. She said and I quote 'I am the last member of the infamous demon clan. My sole purpose is to find and kill everyone who bears the name Uchiha'."

"Itachi, it's her..damn!" I forgot what Itachi's disguise's name was. I looked at him too.

There were confused looks all around. One of us had to volenteer to explain first. Actually, this was supposed to be training from Eskerna Sensei. I couldn't believe it, I failed miserably! I never fail!

"Alright, I guess I can't save it now. However paiful it may be, we'll have to tell Eskerna Sensei that we failed," I sighed.

"I can't believe you did that!" Itachi exclaimed.

"I'm probably more surprized than you are."

I took off the wig, the makeup, and the disguise I was wearing. I had the appearance of Gina. Sasuke jumped up and took a step back.

"Gina, what are you doing here?" he asked bewildered. He was shaking all over.

"I'm not Gina!"

I undid the tranformation juitsu and I was me again. After Itachi undid his transformation juitsu, he was himself again. I was laughing at Sasuke. He was still twitching a little. I shouldn't have been laughing, I should have been terrified. What was Eskerna Sensei going to do to me? I used to not be afraid of her but now she's you know who Jr. and she scares the crap out of everyone.

"Why are you laughing? Eskerna's goanna kill us," Itachi stated gravely.

"Tell me something I don't know. Thank you for helping me forget," I said sarcastically.

"Sorry, I thought you would try to prove me wrong."

"Nia, are you dead?!" Sasuke exclaimed so suddenly that I almost fell over. That statement made me kind of mad.

"Why the hell would you think that?!!!"

"Nia, Sasuke wasn't in the village of naught."

"You again! I thought you wer on some special mission!"

Naruto yelled. Ahhh! Forget what I said before! He could be cuter and he's TOO DAMN ANNOYING!

Maybe I've lost tolerance since Rene finally decided which guy she wanted to be her boyfriend.

"I'm on that mission right now! It will probably end right here if what Kakashi says is true."

"If which thing I said is true?" he asked suspiciously.

"You said taht the last demon was camped near here. She must be tracking us. Briging Catsbane and Itachi's dark clone must have been part of her plan."

"You're not making any sense."

"That's because you failed to wonder why she's the last demon. I could have easily answered that question. Most of the other demons were killed while trying to kill me. The sole purpose of the last demon is the same as any other demon. None of the demon clan have ever fulfilled their purpose and none ever shall because they all chose the wrong person to mess with."

"None will fulfill their purpose except for me is what I'm sure you meant to say!"

Damn, the demon found us already! I guess it's time for me to end my mission.

7 - Mind Games

At the point when the battle really began there was no way for any of us to escape. She had summoned a giant red dragon which was placed outside of a protective circle. If anyone entered the circle, they would not be able to get out until someone inside the circle died. Catsbane had already entered the circle. There were two other beasts there to ensure that Sakura, Naruto, and Kakashi didn't enter the circle.

"What are you playing at you damned demon?" Maybe I was frustrated because she actually had a plan. "What am I playing at? I don't want to fight you. I'd much rather play a game of keep away!" said the demon.

She suddenly disappeared and Catsbane didn't seem a bit surprised. When she reappeared she was choking Sasuke against a tree with a kunai in her hand. That demon was pushing this a little too far. Catsbane turned toward me.

"Are you going to fight me or just take the easy way out because you know you can't beat me?" Catsbane growled.

"I could beat you with a blindfold on and both hands tied behind my back!"

Unfortunately this was all part of the plan. Catsbane was supposed to fight me while the demon tied up Sasuke. That would definitely make it easier for her to stab his heart and this time she had nothing to hide.

At that moment something happened that was not part of the plan. Itachi was supposed to be fighting his dark clone but he was caught up in another fight outside the circle. I couldn't see past the circle so I didn't know who he was fighting. I myself was using a new technique. (Sorry, it's so avatarish. I couldn't think of a different name for it.) It was called fire bending jutsu. As if my kicks and punches weren't bad enough, when I activated my new technique they were accompanied by flames. Catsbane could barely keep up.

As I neared Catsbane's weakening point, the demon neared Sasuke's heart. The rest of team 7 watched the demon pin Sasuke to the ground with her heel and her dagger was dangling just over his heart. She dropped the dagger and they lost their vision. All they could see was the red wall of the protective circle. Itachi's dark clone had finally captured the person who was attacking him. It turned out to be Resha. Resha knew what the demon's plan was. As soon as someone in the circle died the dragon would attack whoever was left. Even if she did die, she would still fulfill her purpose. Resha didn't want to see that happen especially because one of them was her husband. She broke free from Itachi's dark clone, jumped onto the dragon, and ran up its back placing kunais with exploding notes as she went. When she reached its shoulder it found her. The dragon shook violently and Resha fell onto the ground digging her side into one of the dragon's spikes as she went. Then the dragon picked her up and threw her inside the circle.

Back inside the circle Itachi had pushed Sasuke away from the dagger just in time. As Resha tumbled into the circle a vicious smile appeared on the demon's face. One down, three to go. Catsbane got tired of fighting so I decided to go after the demon. She decided to call in her dragon but when she did, it exploded. Piece by piece, her plan was falling apart.

I decided that I would destroy her using my good old advanced sharingan. It had a stage three then too. Stage one: Living Darkness Wolf Mother Jutsu. Stage two: Living Darkness Screaming Vulture Jutsu. Stage three: Living Darkness Proud Eagle Jutsu. Do you remember me talking about bringing an eagle chick home when I was four? Well, he's half the size of me now. I call him baldy.

My sharingan wasn't really necessary since I could read her mind. I guess she didn't know the effects of my jutsu because she wasn't making an attempt to hide her thoughts. With the help of her mind I was able to successfully block and counter every one of her attacks. I eventually got a few kunais into one of my counterattacks and the demon clan was no more. The beasts, Catsbane, and Itachi's dark clone ran away like cowards. There was no time for explaining, only time for getting home.

8 - A New Target

Everything was fine when we got back to the house. Gonan healed his sister and she was fine. I don't know why Itachi was being such a spaz about her. Eskerna sensei said my failure was forgotten about because of my victory against the demon clan. I thought it was kind of funny that Kakashi didn't mind Eskerna Sensei's new look. It creeped out the rest of us.

Unfortunately, we had to say goodbye to the village of haunts for the time being. It was time to move on to the next thing on my to do list. The hunter clan was next on my list. Rene and Gonan were nice enough to take two things on my list too. Rene charged herself with getting rid of the devil clan which just happened to be the enemy of the Hyuga clan. Gonan chose to protect the Nara clan from an elusive clan of deerish fawn things. They just call themselves the Nara haters.

Eskerna Sensei didn't come with us. She couldn't because she was the new Kagekage. Itachi and Resha came with us. They had a secret home in the leaf village While they were in their secret home, they kept a big secret. Whatever it was, they were even keeping it a secret from me. A few months later I found out what their secret was. Resha had a baby boy which they name Sho. He was the cutest thing in the world and I spoiled my little nephew like crazy.

Every moment that I didn't spend with Sho was spent with Kiba. I guess all of his friends were jelous that he had a girlfriend. I wasn't the only one of our group that enjoyed spending time with Kiba and Akamaru. Skittles always had to come with me. Sometimes they would stop us from kissin, other times they didn't really care and we had fun. What really mattered to me was that everyone was safe and the demons were finally where they belonged. Mwahahaha. Just kidding. I don't enjoy killing people as much as I let on but I do enjoy it somewhat. Anyway, the end.
