1 - My man, The King of Pop

Now there's one man that I know that is strong willed, funny, ambitious, caring, and don't forget loving. I'm not saying that's all he is. He has much more than that. This man has had several bumps in the road in his life. It's slowed him down but he's never let them get in the way of his life. Some people say he's a freak. I think different. I think he's a beautiful man. His name is Michael Jackson and he is my hero. Now that you know a little about what I think about him, how about I tell you a little bit about myself and what this remarkable man has done in my life. Michael's influence in my lifestyle has made all the difference in the world. Through his music and show of strength, he's given me strength. Believe me, I needed that strength. People these days are so gullible. A lot of people in the US still believe Michael Jackson is still guilty of those disgusting crimes. They believed he paid the jury off so he could be counted Not Guilty, and that's not true. Sure, he paid for good lawyers. He did that so he could make sure that he wouldn't be counted guilty for a crime he has never committed. All of my friends except my 9 year old friend Tyler believed that he did it. I get made fun of, and sometimes treated like I'm nothing but a weirdo for being a Michael Jackson fan. They say this and that about Michael, this and that about me. But hey! That singles out the good people from the bad. The bad people that taunt me aren't worthy of being a friend or a friendly face of mine. The good ones are the people that understand where I am coming from. So that's good, right? To my opinion, bad things lead to good things. Anyway to not make this thing so long it gets boring, I just want to say that I love Michael Jackson. He's my hero. I'm telling the truth, and I don't care who says anything about it. You don't like me, caring about this man, TOUGH. Go back to your momma. Get outa my face. Don't be trippin' on me. Michael is strong willed, and won't let publicity, the media, or anyone else destroy him. If you take down Michael, you take ALL OF US DOWN BEFORE HIM. I fairly doubt it. lol God bless you Michael Jackson. You're been a blessing. I wouldn't be suprized if I found out that you were an angel sent from god.
