1 - the only chapter

Cottontail(Girl to Rabbit TF) “Can this clock move any slower?” Kaitlyn mumbled as her Science teacher lectured on about Newton’s Law of Motion. “Be patient, in a few more minutes we won’t have to look at him for a whole week.” Her friend Jordan said from the desk behind her. “Yeah but why dose this class have to seem like forever?” Kaitlyn said turning to see her friend doodling on his notebook. “Oh yeah, your one to reprimand someone for not paying attention.” “Yeah Mangis, why don’t you try and ay attention for once.” Tyler said from the desk next to Jordan. “Shut up!” Jordan said. “Hey, you guys are still going to Keith’s Spring Break party?” They’re other friend Cody said leaning into the conversation. “Of course, we have been looking forward to it all week.” Tyler said. Kaitlyn was about to comment on the subject when the four students looked up to see the science teacher looming over them. “Since you four are so intertwined in my lecture, I’m sure you could take on a little oral quiz.” He said. “Miss Kaitlyn, could you tell me when Newton was born?” “Uh... probably a few days after you Dr. Decaria.” She said. The entire class began to laugh, except for one girl sitting next to Kaitlyn. “Like he even had confidence in you knowing the answer.” The girl said coldly. Kaitlyn looked over at her. “Karen why can’t you just shut up for once.” She said. “Hey you two!” Dr. Decaria yelled. “That’s enough, now can you please pay attention before the bell ri...” Suddenly the eight period bell rang and the students began to exit the room. As Kaitlyn walked up the isle of desks, Karen stuck her foot out causing her to fall flat on her face. “Walk much?” Karen said as she walked out of the room. “What a dog.” Tyler said as he helped Kaitlyn up off the ground. -The four friends walked out of Carl- Met high school and began they’re journey home. Kaitlyn was holding a paper towel on her nose, which had been bleeding from her fall. “She has gone too far this time.” Kaitlyn said as she took the bloodstained towel from her face. “Hey, it wasn’t your fault her parents never hugged her.” Jordan joked. “This isn’t funny Mangis!” Kaitlyn yelled as she placed another towel on her nose. “Then why don’t you do something about it? I mean she has been tormenting you since the beginning of the year.” Tyler said. Kaitlyn rolled her eyes. “Like what?” She said. Just a few moments after she said that, she looked over at a small store sitting on the corner of the street across from them. She stared at the sign above the entrance. “Revenge?” she read out loud. The rest of the group looked up at the store. “Oh yeah.” Cody said. “They put that store in a few weeks ago. I’ve never been in there though.” Kaitlyn face soon bore a large grin. “Is Karen going to Keith’s party?” She asked. “Yeah.” Tyler said. Suddenly Kaitlyn bolted across the street to the stores entrance. “Hey wait!” Jordan yelled as he and the others ran after her. As Kaitlyn reached the stores entrance, she reached for the door handle when it was swung open by a boy who she recognized from her school. “Oh, hi Keith.” She said. Keith stared at her as the rest of the group joined them. “Uh... hi.” He said putting his hand over the top of a small box he held at his side. “What’s in the box?” Cody asked. “Just some party supplies. You guys are coming right?” He said. “Yeah.” Tyler said. “Karen is going isn’t she?” “Yeah why?” Keith said “Nothing, just wanting to know who was going to be there.” Tyler replied. Keith turned and began to walk down the sidewalk. “Okay. See you guys tonight.” He said. “See ya.” Jordan said as the group entered the shop. Kaitlyn scanned the inventory of pranks and small items along the five isles and sighed. “Find anything yet?” Cody asked. “No, nothing.” Kaitlyn said. She then made her way up to the front counter were an elderly man sat reading a newspaper. “May I help you?” The man asks. “I’m looking for a prank to pull on this girl at a party tonight.” Kaitlyn said. The man then smiled. He bent down and rustled around one of the counter’s drawers. Soon he came back up with a small bottle of green liquid. The rest of the group joined Kaitlyn and looked at the bottle. “Just make her drink this.” The man said. “What is it?” Tyler asked. "Some kind of itching liquid?" ".....Yeah." the man said. Kaitlyn reached out and took the bottle from the man. "Cool." She said "how much is it?" "Since it's almost Easter, I'll give it to you for free." The man said with a grin. "Sweet. Thank you sir." Kaitlyn said. The group then left the store and split up heading for they're homes. -That night, Kaitlyn walked up to Keith's house she had on her black Carl-Met t-shirt and a pair of blue jeans with the bottle of green liquid in her back pocket. She met up with her friends outside the house. "Hey guys." She said. "Hey, you got the bottle?" Cody asked. "Yep." Kaitlyn replied. "Good, then lets go already." Tyler said. The group entered the house and looked around. There were students dancing everywhere to hardcore rock music playing loudly on the stereo system in the living room. Each of the friends split up and began to dance amongst the crowd. Kaitlyn though was scanning the room for Karen. She soon saw her standing in the kitchen with her friends drinking punch. Kaitlyn squeezed her way into the kitchen. Karen immediately turned and glared at her. "Hey Karen." Kaitlyn said as she moved her hand towards her back pocket. "What are you doing here?" Karen asked in disgust. "Well...I was just thinking..." Kaitlyn said stalling as she began to slip the bottle out of her pocket. "That's a surprise." Karen snapped. Suddenly a large group of seniors rampaged through the Kitchen with a stolen pair of pants. They knocked Kaitlyn into Karen, causing her to spill her punch on her white velvet shirt. Kaitlyn stared wide eyed at her and dropped the bottle back into her pocket. "Sorry! It was an acci..." Kaitlyn began to say as Karen shoved her on the ground. As Kaitlyn hit the kitchen floor, she felt the bottle shatter in her back pocket cutting into her backside. "Watch it dog!" Karen yelled. Kaitlyn shot back up and felt the liquid seeping through her back pocket. She then darted out of the room and ran into Keith in the hallway. "Keith, where is your bathroom?" Kaitlyn said holding her back pocket. "Upstairs, first door on your right." Keith said. Kaitlyn ran as fast as she could up the steps and into the bathroom. She then shut the door and locked it tightly. Kaitlyn pulled her jeans down a small bit to examine the wound left by the bottle. She saw that the glass cut into her deeply and that some of the liquid had made its way in to the wound. She looked into the mirror and sighed. Kaitlyn soon felt a ticklish surge pulse through her body. "Calm down Kaitlyn." She told herself. "It's just an itching liquid." She closed her eyes and took a long sigh of relief. Yet when she opened her eyes back up, she noticed that the tip of her nose had turned a light pinkish color. "What the..." she said as she felt her nose with her fingers. Her nose then shrank to about half it's normal size. "What's happening to me?" she said as the top of her ears elongated through her black hair. Suddenly her feet felt tight against her grey tennis shoes. She bent down and shed her shoes to find that her feet looked no longer like human feet but back animal paws. Kaitlyn let out a small shriek as she saw white hair begin to grown on her new feet. "This is not happening, it can't be!" She said staring into the mirror. Three long whiskers then grew from her cheeks as white hair started growing around her nose. "Am I... Turning into a rabbit?" She asked herself. Soon her body began to grow smaller, causing her clothing to gradually fall off. Her face was soon engulfed in white hair that the spread down her neck and around her torso. "No...stop!" Kaitlyn cried as a small bump grew at the bottom of her spinal cord. The bump was covered in white hair as in made its way up her legs and around her stomach. Kaitlyn began to cry as her hands morphed into a pair of front paws. Her body reached its new size as her bones cracked and repositioned, trapping her in a pre-jumping pose. "No...No...Nooooo!" She screamed as her face pushed outwards forming her new muzzle. Kaitlyn looked around the bathroom in a confused daze. She attempted to yell for help, yet she could no longer speak English. She looked studied her new body over and over again, yet refused to accept the fact that she was now a rabbit. A small white rabbit. Suddenly, the door was open by Keith who looked down at the newly formed Kaitlyn with a confused stare. "How did you get in here?" He said as he picked Kaitlyn up off the ground. Keith then took Kaitlyn outside and let her go in the backyard. Kaitlyn, figuring her human life was practically over, fled into the night. -"Where is she?" Tyler said as he and the rest of the group waited outside of Keith's house. "Come on, the party's been over for an hour." Cody said. "Let's go home; she'll call us in the morning."
