1 - Untitled

Rainbow butterflies fly all around, as I wander through a field.
Clouds racing, and my legs pacing,
To be able to fly.

I spread my arms out and close my eyes.

My wings stretch out as I glide across the fields and valleys.

White birds, doves, fly next to me as I pass over the ocean.

The sun's rays picking me up, higher into the sky.

I fly with nature; soar with excellence as I look down at cities.

I smile as I flap my wings, letting white feathers fall behind me.

Birds flying under and around me, I am not alone.

I dive into the water, and fly back up.

Up into heaven, my time playing on earth has ended.

And Rainbow butterflies fly across the fields I have left.
