This is an inspirational piece that I wrote in school the other day. It was meant to be a short speech or something like that.

1 - Fate, Destiny, & Reason

I believe in fate. If it's going to happen, there is no way to stop it.

I believe in destiny. It's going to happen, since it's already planned for you.

I believe in reason. you make it happen, being that you're the cause & it's the effect.

All these beliefs relate to one thing. Love. it shapes everything around you and fills your dreams. If you think you can live without love, you're wrong. Even if it's the thing you despise the most in the world, it will consume you. The people you will be around will spread their love towards you, whether it's through, hearing it, seeing it, or feeling it emotionally, you will most definitely get a taste. Whether it's going to be sweet or bitter depends upon you fate, destiny, & reason.
