Dreams

When Muraki entwined his snaking arms around Tsuzuki, the shinigami began to tremble. He started to shake as the doctor ghosted his cold lips across the sensitive skin of his neck. Tsuzuki was frightened; he wanted to scream. When Muraki's pale hands slowly caressed his skin, Tsuzuki finally shouted. At the same time, another scream echoed in the bedroom.

Sometimes, Hisoka dreamed about sweets, massive mountains of sugar that spanned for kilometers. Pies, cakes, cookies, candy chocolate; all in gluttonous excess. It made his teeth ache, without even having tried a single morsel. No matter where the boy ran, the sweetness refused to leave. He couldn't escape. While Hisoka screamed, his partner moaned in sugary ecstasy.

Then, once upon a time, Tsuzuki would gently kiss Hisoka. They would be surrounded by scattering cherry blossoms and hold hands in a soft moment of tender passion. Soft whispers of love passed between the pair, meant for only each other's ears. While they slept and dreamed pleasant dreams, the two shinigami would move to the middle of the bed, with their arms around each other.
