1 - chapter 1

Phenix's Cry

“Of all things that had to happen it was that, a lost child, then losing my wife, life is much better now, well `cept for my son's hatred of me” he sighs sadly looking at the cemetery which he had just entered. He looks at all the morning people towards their someone they lost coffin as it sinks into the grave. He remembers how it feels, so lonely though many are there, so sad, so confused and wishing they could of saved them, from that fate in which they suffered. He looks upon a site that has been seen so many times before.

“Angel, Luke, I've returned” he sighs and goes up towards their graves, looking that the dead roses he left before wishing that he never had to do that, give his first love and child roses on their graves, he wanted them alive and healthy, weather they loved him or not. He remembers the day he was told he was loved by someone, their first kiss, their first frack, that one day he found out about their child, the day they were wed, their sons birth and the day his family died.

2 - First kiss

"To go back and think, I really remember how we first met, I was in a park hanging with some acquaintances and having a blast as she walked up" he thinks then and remembers clearly.

She had white hair that seemed silver in the right light, she had crystal blue eyes, as if she had no sight at all though she did, fairly skinny, enough to show she cared about her health. Her name was Clara, but most called her Cleo due to her beauty.

Clara walked up to him and asks quietly and shyly "Can I ask you something" she grabbed his hand and took him a few yards away from the others "Your Phen right" she looked up at him since she was shorter than he.

"Yes why Clara" he looks at her face as she turns to a bright pink.

" Pheniox, I love you" she turns away quickly hoping he wouldn't act like that was something wrong.

" Clara" he looks at her and tightens the grip on her hand.

She turns back and looks at him as he kisses her for the first time knowing and hoping that they were destined for each other.
