1 - Chapter One

[I usually don't write these kinds of stories, but lately I have been reading a lot of ZimDib stories. So I had to write one.]

Chapter One:

"No Zim, you can't." Sixteen years old Dib said, tugging on the green Invader's arm. "You can't leave me."

"I'm sorry, Dib, but the Tallest want me to return." Zim said, not wanting to look at Dib.

"Why? You said you weren't going to be an Invader anymore. You said you would never leave me!" Dib said, now shouting.

"I'm-I'm sorry." He said, lowering his head.

"No...No you aren't." He said, dropping the alien's arm. "If you were really sorry, you wouldn't go."

"I have no choice, Dib!" He yelled. "If I did, I would stay with you."

Tears started to form in the human's eyes. "You told me that you loved me."

"I do." Zim said, placing Dib's hands in his. "But I have to go home."

"Then come home with me!"

"I-I wish I could."

The human couldn't take it any longer, he couldn't watch Zim fly off into space and never return to him.

"Please, Zim, Don't leave me!" He pleaded.

The Invader lowered his head as his ship landed in front of the couple. "I'm truly sorry." Zim said, with a kiss, before he climbed into his ship.

Dib watched in horror as the ship flew away, never to return. "No Zim!" He shouted. "Don't leave me! Please, don't leave me!"

Zim sat in his ship, as he watched Dib become smaller and smaller. "Dib." He said, pressing his hand on the window.

"My master looks sad. What's wrong?" Gir said, in his sweet voice.

"I miss him already." The Invader said when he could no longer see the earth.

"It's not fair!" Dib shouted as he pushed all of the books and papers off his desk. "It's not fair." Dib fell to knees and began to cry.

"Dib." A familiar voice said, as a shadow figure stood in his doorway.

"Gaz?" The boy sniffed, not wanting to show his weakness.

"It-It will be all right." She said as she made her way to her brother. Gaz never understood Dib and Zim's relationship, until now. Having her brother cry on her shoulder as she stroked his back. Hearing him repeating the Invader's name over and over again. She finally understood. They couldn't be apart, they needed each other. Zim was the only person that ever loved Dib and now he was gone.

2 - Chapter Two

Chapter Two:

"Greetings My Tallest." Zim said with a fake smile.

"Oh hey Zim." Red said, waving the Invader off.

His smile faded. "I returned, just like you asked."

"Oh, That's great." Purple said, ignoring him.

Zim, growing annoyed and angry, yelled. "Why did you want me back!"

The tallest looked at each other, then towards Zim. "Have you grown?" Purple said, noticing that Zim was now the same height as them.

"Oh..uh...yes." Zim said, as he looked at his body. He had forgotten the day that him and Dib made that potions to made him taller. He chuckled at the thought of his first night being tall. He was able to reach Dib's lips.

"What's so funny?" Red asked towards the chuckles from the Invader.

"Nothing." He said, growing sad again.

They shook their head before Red started off. "Look Zim, you have been at Earth for five years. When are you going to conquer it?"

'Never.' His mind said, but he didn't answer.

"Zim?" Purple said. "Are you going to answer us?"

"I'm not sure." The Invader said, hoping that would answer both questions.

The Tallest looked at each other before Purple spoke again. "Zim, what's wrong? What do you miss Earth already?"

Zim lowered his head, holding back the tears that he so badly wanted to flow.

"Ooo..It is." Red said, as he winced.

"What did you fall for one of the humans?" Purple said, making a joke, of course. But he didn't know how true it was.

"Whoa, I think that is too." Red said, looking at the grimed face Zim.

Zim shooked his head, before heading back towards his ship.
