Preps

By: Nicholas Olivarez

Why is this school so full of preps and jocks who think that they re better than everyone else? They are conceited and so full of themselves it makes me sick. I hate them so much. They are people just like us so they shouldn t act all high and mighty. Why are they so air-headed? I mean if you take away the sports then they are just regular kids. Is that all that separates us from them this facade? It s all a front. They are insecure about themselves so they surround themselves with people so the void in their souls won t seem so big. It is crucial to them that they don t seem alone. Now, I don t really understand the mindset of a jock or prep, but based on my observations I have determined a few key factors that make a person a prep.

They think that they are better than everyone else. (Of course)

They belittle people because of the fact that that person doesn t think the way that they do.

The biggest reason I consider people preps is the simple fact that they are so generic. By generic I mean that they always have to wear brand name clothes, they always have to like the same things, and they always have to have everyone agree with them.

I have a deep animosity for these preps. I simply can t take it anymore these stupid jocks and dumb-witted preps are taking over our school! I could go on for hours just ranting about how much I hate these PREPS. Just ask my close friends.
