kagome crawled through the narrow opening behind moss staying silently the young girl was hiding something and kagome knew it she knew too much she knew of naraku the jewel all of it every word every heart beat every tiny detail. kagome watched as moss climbed up a rocky path in the cave her movement was smooth even though only an animal or animal demon should have been able to move as such among the rocks kagome did a double take staying just far enough behind moss that the girl wouldn't know she was there kagome breathed silently. soon she could see a light ahead moss had said she was going home but what was home for the girl she wasn't like a human for the most part her behavior wasn't human and kagome had to know more about moss how did she know the information she did. kagome heard claws scrape against stone she held her breath as she continued following moss. soon she could see moss had stopped in front of a shrine "why must I renew the seal everyday" moss whispered opening the door kagome silently followed in careful not to alert moss. In the shrine there was a modle of almost every demon in existence "moss" kagome said moss turned on her heel shock rippled her face "kagome you shouldn't have followed me here" moss whispered walking up to kagome "you knew too much I have to know how do you know about the jewel and all of it" kagome asked moss sighed "I lived through it I'm not a reincarnation of Inu no Taisho and Scar's daughter but I carry her memories powers and duties" moss said 'wait that makes her the reincarnation of Inuyasha's sister he didn't have one' kagome thought then a demon aura leaked from moss "you're not human are you" kagome said moss shook her head "I'm a tribreed Scar was fox and wolf Inu no Taisho was Inu so I carry the blood of all three" moss said as her brown hair changed to blonde and ears appeared with a tail "moss why hide" kagome asked moss sighed "demons aren't liked in the modern day since you're here help me reseal this or every demon will lose their human appearance" moss said kagome nodded sitting down next to moss "ready" moss said kagome nodded then a glow engulfed the shrine something snapped moss's eyes opened wide "it rejected the reseal" moss whispered as the glow brightened the air started whipping every which way the elements swirled clashing against each other hitting and rubbing against each other they began to speed up "what's going to happen" kagome asked as the world began swirling
