1 - The Rain, Concern, And The Umbrella

Kagura glanced up at the sky feeling a single rain drop hit her face 'Rain' the thought of the change in weather passed through her head looking at the setting sun she could not keep flying on like this if it started to rain Kagura looked down at the area she was currently over her expression curious a slight hmphf escaping her lips even though she could not stop the slightly intrigued pleased expression from crossing her face she was over Inuyasha's forest near the field around bone eaters well the feather she was on slowly lowered to the ground tipping forward returning to its normal size Kagura sliding off falling gently to the ground feet first landing perfectly holding her hand out the feather falling into it tucking it gently back into the tie keeping her hair in its normal bun claws gently rustling the other one looking at the sky again a few more rain drops hitting her face somehow causing a light smile to spread to her red lips 'Why does it always make me feel this way its, its like I could just start all over' Kagura thought as a few rain drops fell with the rain Inuyasha would be unable to smell and her scent would be washed away before he could even have a chance to catch it they would never know that she was here with non harmful intentions Kagura took a few steps forward before letting herself fall backwards the wind gently catching her lowering her to the ground her head falling back against the grass small content smile spreading across her blood shaded lips as the rain fell a few drops hitting her face her red eyes clouding over with a bright haze making them even more vivid than they normally were but they also clouded over with a knowing of some sort soon the wind sorceress drifted outside of reality into a world of her own thoughts completely zoned out of the world around her. Kagome sighed feeling the rain drops platter down on her head opening her umbrella starting to climb up the vines on the side of the bone eaters well 'The rain is kind of nice but couldn't it have waited till I was inside' she thought gripping the side of the wooden frame pulling her knees onto the edge jumping down she went to start walking when a demonic aura caught her attention causing her to turn her head her eyes widened when she spotted the source of the aura 'Whys Kagura here' she wondered staring at the wind user she was lying on her back in the field looking up at the sky a slight smile on her lips red eyes opened clouded over like she was somewhere else even with the rain hitting her drenching her feathers and the rest of her but Kagura did not even seem to take notice 'She'll get sick if she stays like that' Kagome thought knowing Inuyasha would throw a fit if he found out what she was about to do warily Kagome neared Kagura who still seemed to take no notice of the fact she was no longer the only one in the field 'If only I could feel at peace like this all the time if only I could actually start over for real instead of just feel like I could' Kagura thought letting her eyes close Kagome carefully bent down next to Kagura holding her umbrella out over the wind user's head Kagura let out a slight huh noticing she could no longer feel the rain against her face her eyes opening she glanced to the side to notice Kagome sitting there holding something over her "What are you doing" Kagura said looking at her something of curiosity and annoyance on her face "Your getting soaked" Kagome said Kagura let out a slight laugh "So" Kagura said looking at the sky underneath what ever the girl was holding over her "You'll get sick if you stay like you are take it" Kagome said offering Kagura the umbrella Kagura smirked slightly laughing dryly "I'm fine dont you have somewhere to be" Kagura said Kagome knew Inuyasha might come looking but she couldnt just leave Kagura like this she would feel bad about it "You dont have to use it just take it I'll feel bad if I just left you like this" Kagome said Kagura glanced over at her something of shock and curiosity in her eyes 'She'd feel bad about it' Kagura thought in shock her mouth opened slightly as she pushed herself up slightly her bangs falling dripping into her face covering her eyes half way "If I take it will you leave and not tell the others I was here" Kagura said Kagome knew it was the only way she was going to get Kagura to take the umbrella so she nodded holding the umbrella out again her eyes widened slightly when Kaguras clawed hand covered hers the wind users claws had red bird markings on them and the touch of her hand was still warm even though she was totally soaked by the rain she should be cold but she wasnt Kagome let go of her umbrella standing glancing back at Kagura the wind user was looking at a few of the birds zipping through the rain Kagomes eyes widened slightly Kaguras expression was so solemn watching them red lips turned down into something of a frown ears dropped slightly red eyes holding something of sorrow and regret she had been smiling a second ago Kagome gulped taking a step towards her deciding to take the chance if she didnt do something that look would be embedded in her head Kaguras lips then turned up into a solemn smile as the wind user glanced at her "You really should get going Inuyasha might be stubborn hard headed what ever you want to call him but he does care about you he will come looking you should always remember that you know no matter how much he yells at you or calls you useless its just his way of letting you know he was actually worried" Kagura said tilting her head slightly her bangs swaying to the side still dripping wet she was right completely right somehow Kagome knew it 'Since when was she like this its like she's a different person' Kagome thought turning around sparing one last glance at the wind user who was staring at the sky again before darting off sure if Inuyasha saw Kagura he would ruin the peaceful scene it was clear Kagura was not there to fight them Kagura glanced at Kagome as she darted away before letting herself fall back against the grass again 'What was it in her eyes she was actually concerned about me, When I've tried to kill her so many times, why would she be concerned, Everythings so different so peaceful when it rains, if only it could last forever' was Kaguras last willing thought as she drifted away from reality under the glow of the moon rain drops pattering against the ground
