Chapter 1 - Meeting Star	2
Chapter 2 - 'He deserved it'	4

1 - Meeting Star

~this takes place at the time of book 1, when Harry is 11. just so you know.

Harry sighed. He was on his way to Hogwarts for the first time, via the Hogwarts Express. Ron and Hermione were sitting with him, Hermione with her nose in a book. Ron was asleep. Harry was about to fall asleep, too, when he heard footsteps running. Then the door of the compartment opened and a girl with black hair streaming down her back jumped in, and slammed the door shut. That resulted in Ron waking up and falling out of his seat. Hermione giggled, and Harry laughed. The girl grinned as Ron got back into his seat.

" Can I sit in here?" she asked.

Harry, Ron and Hermione nodded. She sat down. " My name is Star" she said.

" Nice to meet you, Star" Hermione said. Ron muttered something similar, but Harry was staring out the window and didn't say a word until Ron nudged him in the ribs, where he snapped back.

" Um, yeah, nice to meet you" Harry said. Star smiled.

" You're Harry Potter" she said. Harry grinned.

" So I've noticed" he said, and Star laughed. Later, as they were getting off the train they were greeted by Hagrid. Then all the first years went across the lake, into Hogwarts and into the Great Hall.

" I hope we're in the same house, eh?" Star said. Harry nodded, so did Ron and Hermione. After Harry, Ron and Hermione were put into Gryffindor, Star was called up, but was disappointed when she was put into Hufflepuff. After a moment, though, she smiled again. After the feast that followed the Sorting ritual, Star waved goodbye to Harry, Ron and Hermione and was marched out of the Great Hall, momentarily followed by the Gryffindors.

The next day, Harry, Ron and Hermione had Defence against the Dark Arts with Hufflepuff, so they saw Star. She didn't look overly happy, but grinned when she saw her friends. Ron sat with Neville Longbottom, Hermione sat with Seamus Finnigan and Harry sat with Star. One moment when Professor Quirrel wasn't watching them, Harry looked at Star.

" What's wrong?" he asked her.

" No one in Hufflepuff likes me" she said quietly. Harry turned away after that. He didn't know what else to say. Hufflepuff had Charms with Ravenclaw afterwards, where Star met Henry Blackwood. Gryffindor had Transfiguration with Slytherin. Draco Malfoy made fun of Ron, Harry and Hermione the entire time. Harry, Ron and Hermione didn't see Star again until Saturday. She was outside, sitting under a tree. She didn't seem sad this time. They walked over to her.

" Hey Star" all 3 said. She looked at them happily.

" Hi" she said. She beamed. " I made friends with Susan Bones, Hannah Abbott, and Ernie Macmillan in my year in Hufflepuff. And I met a third year, he seems really nice" Star said.

" Who is he?" Harry asked.

" Cedric Diggory, I really like him" Star said.

" That's good, that you've made Hufflepuff friends" Hermione said.

" Yeah, and I met Henry Blackwood from Ravenclaw" Star said. Harry smiled.

" You're certainly getting to know a lot of people" said Ron.

" Yes, I am. I also met Cho Chang, in the hall, yesterday. We had a nice conversation" Star said. Just then Susan Bones and Hannah Abbott walked by, but stopped when Star signalled for them to come over. They did.

" Hi Star" said Susan. Star grinned.

" Hi" she said, addressing both of them. Harry looked at them. They said hello to Ron, Harry and Hermione as well, and hurried off.

" They seem nice" Hermione said.

" They are" Star said. For the rest of the day, the 4 hung out together, and they went and visited Hagrid and Fang, talked to people, and sat around outside. They couldn't go to the common rooms, because they were not in the same house. They parted company at dusk. Star stayed up for a time in the common room, and so did Harry, Ron and Hermione. The first to retire was Hermione, then followed by Ron. Between Harry and Star, the latter was asleep in bed first.

2 - 'He deserved it'

One Thursday afternoon, Gryffindor and Hufflepuff had Potions together. Star was mixing her potion correctly, until she added a wrong ingredient. The potion started to hiss and bubble, but then it turned to the color it would be if she had done the potion correctly, and it was still. Snape came around and looked at it. Star gulped. Then the potion hissed and boiled and bubbled again. There was a loud bang and black smoke poured out of her cauldron. Once the smoke cleared, everyone laughed, since Snape's hair was standing straight up. Star got a strict talking to, detention, and 10 points taken from Hufflepuff. After detention, Star hurried off to dinner in the Great Hall. She sat with Susan and Hannah on either side of her, Cedric across from her.

On Saturday, they heard of the coming up trip to Hogsmeade, and that they'd need a permission slip signed to go. Harry knew he wouldn't be going. He sighed out loud by accident.

"What's wrong Harry?" Hermione asked.

"It's the trip to Hogsmeade, I'm not going" Harry said.

"Why not?" Ron asked.

"My uncle or aunt would never sign the permission slip" Harry answered. Star grinned.

"It's ok, I'm not going either. I live in an orphanage, and no one will sign for me" she said.

"Then how did you get here anyways? and to Diagon Alley?" Ron asked.

"One of the women who works there is a witch, she took me to Diagon Alley. We went to Gringotts and found out my parents left me an awful amount of wizarding money. So I got my supplies and came here" Star replied.

"Why would a witch work at an orphanage?" Ron asked, and received a look from Hermione that said 'stop-asking-questions-your-asking-too-many'. Star giggled.

"It was an orphanage for witches and wizards" Star said.

"What does that mean?" Harry asked.

"It just means for kids whose mom would've been a muggle or a witch, and the dad would've been a wizard or a muggle. The orphanage was for pure-bloods or half-bloods" Star answered.

"And you are...?" Ron asked.

"Me? oh, I'm a pure-blood" Star replied. Draco walked by.

"Did I hear there was a pure-blood with the mudblood?" he asked, sniggering.

"So what if there is?" Star snapped.

"Touchy, touchy" Draco said. Star pulled out her wand.

"Stupefy" she said, as a red bolt of light came out of her wand and Draco flew back a bit. Draco looked at Star, then stood and hurried away.

"That was cool" Ron said. Hermione looked horrified.

"You're not allowed to use magic on other students!" Hermione exclaimed.

"Who cares, he deserved it" Star said.
