The Hooded Cluck Gets His Kiss From Penelope

The hooded claw flew down off her perch and saw Penelope wave goodbye to the Ant Hill Mob.

He sighed and was about to leave himself when he heard Penelope say

"You do know i only kissed Dum Dum as a friendly thank you gesture right?"

He blushed again and said "why should i care
I mean it's not like I'm jealous or anything like that."

"Then why is your face all red?"

"Er" he blushed again and said "i must be running a slight fever that's all."

"Really? i shall check on that then"

Huh" he said wondering what she meant by that.

She walked up to him and felt his forehead which made him blush beet red"

She said "my goodness you do feel a tad warm but i don't think it's a fever."

"But i do think I know how to find out what it is though."

He gulped and wondered if she knew he liked her and was a bit jealous of what happened earlier and what she planed to do with him.

He was shocked at what happened next when he felt her lips pressed against his
He practically melted in a puddle not really but he felt like he would.

He held his feathered costumed hands together at first but soon after Penelope Kissed him and tried to break it off he grabbed her in his wings and he kissed her back.

This made Penelope blush a bit too as he was holding and kissing her.

After that kiss they both looked in each others eyes and said i love you.

Then he asked her if she would marry him and she accepted
