1. Chapter 1

Lori walked out of her house on a gloomy damp day. She was headed for the park, as she always did to think, draw and write. As she neared the park she got cold so she zippered her very light black sweatshirt over her black t-shirt.

"Damn.." she told her self as she got closer to the park

"I knew I should of put on a warmer jacket! But no ‘its not that cold out’ I told my self ‘ill only be there 30 minutes!’"

She saw that the bottom of her black baggy pants had gotten wet and muddy by the puddles she had stepped in, even though she was wearing her black platform shoes.

"Great..." the thought

"more laundry, Jack-san isn’t going to be happy."

Suddenly she stopped. She saw her best friend, Sora, waiting for her.

"Hey Sora-san!!" she called to him.

He looked up from his black umbrella. She could see that he was wearing his usual cloths, black pants, black shirt with a yellow rim, and same with she shoes.

"Hey..." he said.

She sat next to him on the bench.

"What are you doing here?" she asked him curiously.

"Well I was waiting for you."

Lori thought for a minute.

"But why would you do that?" she asked.

"I need to tell you something...."

His brown spiky hair blew in the breeze as it always did, Lori’s knee length hair was blowing all around because she didn’t have time to put it up.

"W-What did you want to tell me? You know you can always tell me anything..."

Lori and Sora had been friends since they were 2 years old, they were now 18 and they had always told each other everything.

"T-The first time I saw you....I thought of magic..." he said not looking at her.

"W-What do u mean...?"

"What I mean is....well...its hard to explain..."

"Its ok I understa---"

But she was broken off. Before she knew it Sora's and her lips were touching. His hand was gently holding her head just below her ear. Lori started to relax, she knew what Sora had been trying to say, he wanted to say he loved her. She had loved him too except she didn't have the courage to tell him. He pulled his head away. She looked up at him with tears in her eyes.

"What's the matter?" he asked stroking her hair.

"Nothing..." she replied

"I'm just so happy."

They embraced and then Lori checked her watch.

"Its time for me to go home." She told him.

"I'll walk you." She smiled at him.

Now she finally knew why her sister Julie loved to be with her boyfriend all the time. They walked to Lori's house hand in hand.

"I'll see you tomorrow?" Sora asked when they reached the door. Lori gave him a kiss.

"Defiantly." She replied with a smile, looking into his sea blue eyes.

She went into her house, pulled off her shoes and put on her slippers, then she went into her room and changed into her baby blue, black rimmed, yellow flowered silk kimono and plopped on her back on her silk-sheeted bed, closed her eyes and smiled.

"What are you so happy about?" she heard a voice from her door way.

It was her sister Julie. She wasn't about to tell her sister about Sora being her first boyfriend because Julie was a tattletale, and besides, her family never liked Sora that much. "

Oh nothing..." she replied happily sighing.

"You know," her sister said to her, Lori's sea blue colored eyes were open now but they were fixed on the ceiling.

"What ever it is I'll find out, by the way," she went on

"Were where you? Princesses aren't supposed to be out gallivanting in their city! Something could have happened to you!"

Lori rolled over to her left side to face her sister in the doorway and held her head up with her left hand.

"Just because I'm less cautious than you are doesn't mean I can't go to the park." She told her sister. Julie stared at Lori.

"What did you do at the park?" she asked Lori

"You know what....its for me to know and for you to find out!"

Julie picked up Lori's dirty cloths

"And what are you doing wearing these black cloths again?! I told you not to wear them! Their not princess like!"

"Well what if I don't want to be a princess!? What if I want to go to a public school, and go to the public dances, and hang with kids my age!? Did you even think of that?!"

"You shouldn't want that! You should be happy for what you h--"

Julie stopped and looked at Lori who had a tear running from her sea blue colored eyes down her cheek, and was sitting up now.

"This is about Sora-san isn't it?!"

"No!"

"You love him don't you?!"

"No Julie no!"

"How could you love him?! Its agents the rules!"

"He loves me too!!"

Lori stopped. She had said enough. Her sister knew. Suddenly she got slapped across the face with Julie's hard hand.

"You are never to leave these palace walls or see that boy again! Do you hear me?!"

Lori didn't look at her. She was concentrating on the pain she felt.

"Look at me!" Julie yelled

"I will see him," Lori whispered "And you can't stop me."

Julie walked out the door slamming it. Suddenly Lori heard her door being locked.

"No!!!!!!" she screamed while slamming on the door with her fists. "No! You cant do this no!

Then she gave up. She turned her back to the door and slid down to the floor, hugged her knees, put her head on her arms, and cried the rest of the night.

ok yeah i know it needs work...but any comments?

2. Chapter 2

Lori woke up in the dead of night. She looked at her clock wearily and saw it was 11:30.

"Every one in the palace is asleep.." she thought.

"I'll run away," she told her self

"No one is awake, I'll climb out the window..."

Luckily she had spare shoes and cloths tucked away in her humungus closet. She packed seven shirts, seven pants, etc. She quietly opened her window and looked out. Her palace was only one floor, for a strange reason, but it was bigger and had more rooms than any other palace in Japan. Lori planted her shoe on the damp cold grass.

"I'll go to Sora-san's house," she thought

As soon as both of her feet were on the ground she grabbed her bag full of cloths and started to sprint.

"Damn!" she said quietly

She had forgotten about the palace walls. Then she looked toward the gate. Lori was just skinny enough to fit it. She threw her bag over the gate and slid more easily than she thought. She grabbed her bag and ran toward Sora's house. Her feet stomping threw puddles and running over grass. Finally she reached Sora's small house on the corner. Sora's house was two floors, and Sora's room was on the second floor.

"Great..." Lori thought to her self as she stood staring up at his window.

"How am I going to get his attention?!"

Then she noticed a small rock on the ground.

"Perfect.." she said aloud.

She took the small rock and threw it at Sora's window. It hit his window and bounced off, making a banging noise. She waited to see some movement in the window.

Nothing.

She picked up the rock again, and did the same thing. Suddenly she saw Sora in the window. She waved. He wiped his eyes looked shocked to see her. He opened his window.

"L-Lori-Chan....w-what are you doing here? You know your not supposed to out of the palace unguarded."

Lori looked at him smiling.

"So that didn't matter earlier?" she said teasing him.

"Yes, it did but, what are you doing here?"

"Well, my sister doesn't want me seeing you, and she doesn't want me leaving the palace walls. I would hang myself if I couldn't see you again."

"Oh really?" He joked.

"Hold on, I'll be right there to let you in."

A moment later he opened the door for her.

"Ok," he said

"You have to be really quiet."

Lori gave him a kiss

"Anything for you."

Sora led her hand in hand up the small staircase, sneaked her past his parent's bedroom and led her into his room, shutting the door.

"So," Lori looked around his room.

"Where am I going to stay?" she asked

"Good question..." he said.

"Well, you could sleep in my bed."

"Good heavens no, I am not for one going to make you sleep on the floor while I get your bed, I will sleep on the floor."

Lori grabbed a pillow and blanket from Sora's closet, put them on the floor, and started to flatten out the blanket with her hands. Suddenly Sora grabbed her wrists, and pulled her up on her feet.

"Princesses don't sleep on floors," He told her.

"The only way to settle this is that we both sleep in my bed, we don't want each other sleeping on the floor so it's the only way to settle it."

He saw Lori looked nervous.

"Don't worry," he reassured her

"We won't do anything."

Lori playfully shoved him in the shoulder, smiling.

"OK, fine."

Lori started to take off her Kimono. Sora looked at her with wide eyes. Lori looked up at him.

"Oh, haha don't worry, I have my pajamas on under it."

Sora sighed a sigh of relief.

"Is it just me, or is it cold in here?" Sora asked.

"Its just you." Lori told him.

"I'm so cold!"

"Well it's probably because you only have your boxers on and no tee shirt."

Sora looked in the mirror.

"Oh yeah.....that's probably why..."

Lori stretched out her arms over her head and yawned.

"I think I'm going to go to bed."

"Me to," Sora said

"If it wasn't for you I would still be sleeping right now." He told her kidding around.

Sora put on a tee shirt and then they got into bed. Lori put her head against Sora's chest and sighed. Then she looked up at him.

"Don't ever leave me." Lori told Sora

Sora looked down at her.

"Are you kidding? If any thing ever happened to you I would never forgive my self. You the only thing that matters to me."

Lori smiled. Sora kissed the top of her fore head. Lori put her arm around his waist, and he did the same with her. Sora rested his chin on Lori's head.

Then Lori closed her eyes and drifted off to sleep.

3. Chapter 3 (finished! ^_^)

The morning sun came into the window. Lori blinked her eyes and rubbed them. She sat up, and remembered she was at Sora's house. She looked around. Sora wasn't in his room. She hopped out of bed and quietly walked down the staircase. As she neared of the end of the staircase she could hear Sora and his father talking. She put her back to the wall and listened.

"Can Lori stay here for a while?"

"No!"

"Why not!?"

"Because we will get in trouble with her parents! They are the king and queen! Do you know what will happen if they find her here if she stays?!"

Sora didn't answer. Lori was speechless. She quietly went up the stairs and sat on the bed, waiting for Sora.

flash back

You can see a younger version of Lori and Sora playing in a sandbox. Then you see a guard take Lori away, while Sora sits there. Lori looks back at him, with sad eyes.

end of flash back

"Just like old times..." Lori sighed to herself.

Sora came into his room noticing Lori sitting on his bed. Lori looked up at him, tears starting to come to her eyes.

"What's the matter?" Sora asked as he sat next to Lori putting his arm around her.

"I heard everything....about me not staying, I might as well leave, I've caused you enough trouble as it is."

"No, no you can't leave, we would never see eachother...."

Lori rested her head on Sora's shoulder and began to cry.

"I just don't know what to do..."

"Well..." Sora said

"We could move to another country?"

Lori sighed out a laugh

"We don't have enough money." Lori giggled back

"Aww man.." Sora joked.

Lori sat up

"What if your dad finds out I'm here? What if Julie finds me? What if..."

Sora put his finger to her lips

"Don't worry. It'll all be okay."

Sora gently put his lips to hers. Lori put her arms around his neck, and he put his arms around her waist. Lori pulled her head away looking into Sora's sea blue eyes.

"I love you Sora." She whispered

Sora gave her a gentle kiss

"I love you to Lori"

Lori smiled, and rested her head on Sora's shoulder.

Sora sighed, and stroked Lori's hair.

"Okay," Sora said, while Lori lifted her head off of Sora's shoulder.

"I need to go to the marketplace, and I don't want my dad to know you're here, so you need to come with me."

Lori nodded. She got up and got a dark blue kimono with purple flowers out of her bag. Sora grabbed cloths and went into the bathroom across the hall to change and give Lori her privacy.

As Lori was getting her kimono on she remembered what her mom had told her when she was getting ready for a party Lori wasn't allowed to go to.

"Now Lori," her mother said while picked out a dress,

"If your father and I find a boy of our liking for your marriage he will come to dinner tomorrow night."

Lori wondered if they had found a boy of their liking. If he had come to dinner and she had not been there. This made her stomach feel as if it were in knots.

Lori pulled up her hair in a ponytail with a strand hanging in her face, and sat down on the bed and waited for Sora to return.

Suddenly she heard footsteps coming up the stairs toward Sora's room.

4. Chapter 4 (what i have so far)

Okay, what i have so far. And i almost have chapter 5 done. Wow...i LOVE how this story is coming out! ^_^

"Where is she?!" Screamed Julie at the guards that were sposed to be watching the palace gate the night before.

The guards looked at each other, puzzled.

"We...don't know, princess."

Julie clenched her teeth.

"Well you better find her!"

"Find, who?" asked a soothing voice from behind Julie.

The guards bowed.

" Good evening your majesty."

Julia turned around quickly.

" Oh, heh, good evening mother, we were just talking about...erm...some beisness we need to tend to." Julie replied with a fake smile.

Her mother crossed her arms.

"Really Julie, what were you talking about?"

Julia could tell her mother was getting adjitated.

"Well, you see mother," Julia began nervusly.

"We cant find Lori. She's missing."

Her mother gasped and put her hand over her mouth.

"Well then, guards! Search this entire village! No one sleeps untill she is found!" Her mother ordered.

The guards dashed off.

Julie's mother rushed off to tell her husbend, and Julie was left alone in her bed room. All she could think about was how Lori could do such a thing.

"Stupid Lori," she thought
"Always getting into trouble..."
Julia layed on her back on her purple silk sheeted bed.

"But where would she go? Sora's house? No, to obvious..."

Julie pondered this question for hours. Thinking of the most random places, but once she got one she always thought up a reason why she wouldn't go there.

"Damn you Lori! Curse your ways!" Julie said under her breath.

After two hours of thinking, finally Julie sat up. She stood up and looks out her window.

"Where are you Lori," she whipered.

5. Not a chapter, but read it anyway....ITS IMPORTANT

Okay, I've been editing my story...don't worry! It still has the basic concept, except its more fantasy. I've been making the chapters longer and such....though I'm not going to have much time to work on it now, because school starts in two days T.T So, I WILL finish this (my friend and I may even get it published o_o) but it's going to take me longer....THANKS FOR YOUR PATIANCE! hugs everyone
