

Poems

By InsaneWanderer

Submitted: April 3, 2007

Updated: April 3, 2007

i wrote these bout 4 months ago

1. Loneliness

Loneliness

Lost in shadows;
Spawned from within.
Drowned in a darkness;
All-consuming,
Never ending.
And out of the darkness comes lies.
Acting and lying;
Always on guard.
Fearful of the inevitable trip,
The fall,
That will shatter the old and battered shield
And reveal reality.
A twisted conscience-like voice
Whispers and warns
Of the danger and hurt
That comes from reaching out.
Friends,
Who want to help
Yet know nothing but the lies,
Are truly blind,
Deaf to the screams for help
Until it is too late to.
And so the shadows grow
And the darkness darkens.

2. Trust

Trust

How much it is worth.
We trust many people
With many things;
secrets;
feelings;
opinions.

Yet, to completely trust someone,
trust someone not
to lead you astray,
trust someone to lead you through the darkness,
is an unimaginably
hard thing to do.

Yet, once done,
a bond is formed.
A bond of honor and respect.

Trust.

A hard thing
to do,
a hard thing
to destroy.

Yet, almost impossible to repair once broken.

Trust.

How much it is worth.