

On the Other Side Of The Mirror

By JSLOVE

Submitted: April 12, 2007

Updated: April 12, 2007

I'm trying to do poetry, leave me alone, except for constructive criticism.

1. Waiting

I am waiting in the dark
Singing a silent song
Watching as the night grows dark
And feel I am alone.
I wonder where you are
I hope to see you soon
But I wait all night,
You didn't come
And I want to go home
But I hide as I here someone coming
Dawn already here
I see you
But you aren't alone
I thought you held me dear
A tear
Some fear
And then I am alone.
I feel like I am in a mirror
The side that I see what you are doing
While you are oblivious to me
Oh if only you had known I was there
Maybe things would have been different
I throw the necklace you gave me at you
And run away
I hear you chasing me
Trying to catch me
But I run faster and you are gone
Again I am alone
Waiting on the other side of the mirror