1. Nothing More

Oh, look at Alice
Sprawled all over the floor
Her once golden hair, is now stained with crimson blood
An arm here, a leg there, the beautiful color red everywhere
The cause of death?
A simple stab to the back
The other matters took course afterward, my dears
Oh, but where is her heart?
In a hole, where the girl's heart should lay, a note is found
"My poor Alice, a petty she had to go
Her heart lives alone, like mine does forever..."
Her body is taken away, to burn in the pits
We don't need dead girls cluttering up this wonderful place...
As they clean the blood off the checkered walls, a lone jar sits in the corner, with a note that says
"Here, in this lonely place, is our Wonderful Alice's heart
Which should have belonged to me
It still beats, like mine does for her
She should have been mine and mine only
This heart longs for it's body, as I long for her...~Mad Hatter"
Oh well, the poor girl will have to suffer, for what she has caused.
