1.1

(A One Shot I wrote for Kitay. Why? Because I like to write and I'm stuck on my other fics and because I am a nice person, that's why! Krista belongs to Kitay. I'm not sure who Sky belongs to it but it isn't me. I do One Shot/Short Story requests, as well, if any of you reading this are interested. Let's start the story...)

The sun inched along the backs of the towers of Twilight Town. It's hazy rays of light slowly infiltrated every corner, turning from a light sickly shade of yellow to a shade of golden honey. It was this color of sunbeam that finally broke through the window of an apartment house.

The girl laying in the bed winced as the sun hit her pillow and half opened one bright blue eye. Seeing that it was light outside, the girl sat up and rubbed her eyes. Summer was a great time of year for her: no alarm clock other than the sun and plenty of free time with her friends.

A sudden tap on the window from a thrown rock caused her to start and look around. Speaking of her friends...She got out of bed and opened the window. Below was a spikey blond boy with big blow eyes. Seeing her, the boy waved.

"Hurry up, Krista! Don't wanna miss the big day, do ya?" He called with a grin.

"I'm up, I'm up!" She smiled down at him. The boy saluted her.

"I'll be waiting!" Krista mock-glared at him as she closed her window and started to get ready. How could she have forgotten? Today was the day Sora and Sky were coming and they'd promised to take her and Roxas to visit and brand new world with them.

Suddenly filled with excitement, Krista leapt from her bed, "Time to get started!" she exclaimed to the empty room. As she took a step forward though, a silver something on her dresser began to flash.

"Hey Krista!" Sky's voice filled the room, "Just wanted to let you know we're on our way. Sora and I'll be there in about 10 minutes. Get a move on! I know how much you like sleep, but today's not a day you want to miss!" Krista picked up the little message recorder, revealing it to be the silver heart necklace she had received last time she and Roxas had gone on an adventure with their two other-world friends.

"Right!" Krista said, pulling on the necklace. A quick look in the mirror as she headed to her closet told her that her brown-blond hair was in dire need of a brushing.

Within five minutes, Krista was in front of the mirror again, now wearing her red beach-shirt and favorite black shorts. She quickly pulled a brush through her hair and threw on her red headband and charm bracelet. Then she shot out of the room with three minutes to spare.

"Woah, where's the fire?" Krista spun around to look at her still pajama-clad sister.

"No where. Just gonna be late for my plans with Roxas." she answered, attempting to convey a hint that her sister didn't get.

"Uh-huh. And what are they?"

"Well if you must know, Miss Nosey, we're going to do some exploring today." Just because she hadn't mentioned they'd be visiting a new world didn't mean it was a lie. Before her sister could give her more of the third-degree, Krista grabbed two ice-creams from the freezer and flew out the door.

"What took ya?" Roxas asked the minute she got out the door.

"My older sister," Krista explained. Roxas rolled his eyes, "Want some Sea-Salt ice-cream?"

"When do I not?" He asked, snatching one out of her hand, "Now let's get going. Your sister made us late!" Roxas grabbed her open hand and tugged her, both laughing, towards the sandlot.

"Look!" Krista said, pointing into the sky. Roxas followed the line of her finger and saw it, too: the small, brightly colored ship careening through the atmosphere.

"They're gonna crash!" Roxas said, but Krista was too busy waving to hear him, "Krista!" Roxas lunged, knocking the girl out of the way right before the ship hit the ground.

"Thanks." Krista breathed

"No problem."

"That's it, Sora, you aren't allowed to drive any more!" Sky's voice came from near the ship.

"Aw, C'mon Sky! I'm not that bad!" Another voice said through the smoke.

"First Deep Jungle, then Atlantica, and now Twilight Town? I think Donald needs to give you some driving lessons!"

The smoke finally cleared, revealing Sky and the spikey-brown-haired Sora. For the moment, neither of them noticed Krista and Roxas as they hastily stood up and stared at them. As the playful bickering continued, Roxas and Krista gave each other "okaaay" looks before Roxas cleared his throat.

"Oh! There you are Roxas!" Sora laughed, slapping his friend on the back as Sky rushed up to embrace Krista.

"We've...been here. I can't breathe, Sky." Krista said with a smile.

"You didn't really think I was going to hit your girlfriend, did ya?" Sora asked.

"You came pretty close." Roxas answered.

"Don't worry. It won't happen again." Sky assured the group at large, "Because Sora isn't driving until Donald teaches him how to control a gumi ship."

"Then how are we going to get to this "surprise" you promised?" Krista asked.

"Hey-I can drive, too, you know." Sky pointed out.

"Speaking of, Miss Captain," said Sora, "We should probably be leaving."

"Right. You guys ready?" Sky asked, turning to Roxas and Krista.

"Totally!" They both exclaimed together.

"Okay! All aboard Highwind!" Sora said, "I call shot-gun!" Sora raced onto the ship, Sky following after winking at the pair.

"Another adventure..."Roxas said, "And this time won't be like the last." He kissed Krista.

"This time, I'll fight with you." Krista promised.

"No, this time nothing will happen." Roxas answered. They took each other's hands and boarded the shuttle.

*****

"So where are we headed? Atlantica?" Krista asked conversationally.

"No way! We already told it's a new place!" Sora said.

"Any hints?" said Roxas.

"It's a surprise! It's a world Sky and I found a while back. You two are going to love it."

"We're almost there!" Sky called from the cockpit, "Sora, explain how it works."

"Okay, you two are gonna black out for a minute, but you'll be fine. Things will be...different when you wake up."

"Different how?" Krista asked, a note of panic entering her voice.

"If this is going to hurt Krista-" Roxas started.

"Would we do anything to harm you guys?" Sora asked, "Now...here it comes!" The ship began to shake and light began to fill the cabin. Roxas sunk into his chair, unconscious.

"Roxas?!" Krista gasped, "Sora, what's wrong with him?!" silence, "Sky?!" But she was the only one awake in the entire ship. As she realized this, though, the ship crashed into the ground and she herself passed out.

*****

"Ohhh..." Krista groaned, opening her eyes. She was now laying outside on the ground. From where she was, she could see that this place had no buildings. All she could see were grey-green shrubs and a huge, oddly-shaped rock formation in the distance.

"Hey, Krista! You're up!"

"Ahhh!" Krista shouted, "Talking lion!"

"Krista, you're fine. It's us." The lion on the right said.

"Yeah, don't you recognize us?" Asked the deep brown one to the left.

"Sora?" She asked with disbelief, "Sky?"

"Yup!" Sky said.

"Uh-huh. Well, I'm getting off the crazy train. See you guys." Krista tried to get up, but tripped over her own four feet, "FOUR?! I'm supposed to have two feet! She looked down, only to see four cream-colored paws beneath her, "OMIGOSH! I'm a lion!" She spun around, chasing her tail, "No way! This is SO awesome guys!" Sky and Sora chuckled

"We knew you'd like it." Sky said, "Sorry about freaking you out with everybody passing out, but that's how the magic works."

"So does that mean Roxas is okay?" Krista asked.

"Yup. He's still out though." Sora answered, flicking his tail.

"Where is he?" Krista asked.

"Over there." Sky said, pointing with her tail.

"Roxas! Roxas! Are you okay?!" Krista asked, standing over the limp, furry body and padding it with one of her paws.

"RAWR!" Roxas suddenly leapt up and tackled Krista, who fell over from fright.

"GOSH! Roxas! Don't do that! You scared me to death!" She shouted, placing a paw over her heart. Roxas just laughed.

"That was TOO funny." Roxas said, "Thanks for helping me set that one up, guys."

"Anytime. Scaring Krista is way fun." Sora said.

"That wasn't funny." Krista said, bapping Roxas over the head, "But being a lion suits you." She said. The lion was much lighter than Sora and had Roxas' hair. He was also wearing his Organization VIII necklace and checkerboard rinks and bracelet.

"You are the most adorable lioness, I've ever seen." Roxas purred, nuzzling her, "I love the necklace."

"Did it stay on?" Krista gasped, looking down. Sure enough, her heart necklace glittered against her fur.

"Sora! Sky!" A new voice entered the fray, causing Krista to jump again and Roxas to laugh. The new voice belonged to a huge yellow lion, his long brown mane already grown out.

"Simba!" Sora cried, running up to him, "Long time no see!"

"I just saw you guys three days ago." He answered, ruffling Sora's hair with a massive paw.

"Three days?" Roxas asked, "Really?"

"Yeah." Sky answered, "We helped Simba get rid of his uncle's ghost!"

(Horray! Not done!)
