Chapter 1 - Lover

2

1 - Lover

"Okay.....it's not so bad." A young, fair skinned boy looked at himself in the mirror, he was wearing an outfit that he thought would not compliment him at all. "Well....I'm lucky I guess, she won't kill me for not wearing it!."

The boy took up a brush and ran it through his fluffy, rich, blonde hair and gave his head a slight shake to settle any awkward feeling hairs. He took one last look and seemed satisfied with how he looked, at least, satisfied enough to go out. He blinked his apple green eyes as he heard the door bell ring. His mother answered the door, he ran to the top of the stairs and listened to see if she would call for him. Sure enough, his mother yelled for him.

"Yana! Kira's here!" She yelled in her naturally parental voice, it was the perfect mother's voice.

"Coming!" The boy identified as Yana scurried down the stairs, he couldn't wait to see his friends that night.

"About time, let's go!!!" Kira giggled, pushing her wine red hair from her face, her royal blue eyes shining happily, she grabbed ahold of Yana's arm like she so often did, and they were off to meet up with two other people.

The two arrived at a enormous, brand new theatre, and it was opening night. Yana, Kira and their other two friends had been invited to the Grand Opening of Theatre Royale and asked if Kira wanted to come, who in turn invited Yana. So, the four were all suppose to meet in front of the main attraction's area, unfortunately, Yana had the rough task of keeping Kira from touching the posters that lined the area. Not soon enough did the other two friends come trotting up to them. Kira immediately latched herself onto the long haired cutie with sparkly sky blue eyes, and smiled largely at him. Yana chuckled and glanced at the other boy, he was slightly taller than them all, and his hair was a shiny black, his brown eyes glittered kindly at Yana.

"I've missed you, Niku!!!" Kira said to the long haired boy that she clung to so tightly. "You too, Sora!"

"Same here!" Niku smiled.

"Ditto. Well, shall we go? Yana?" The black haired boy, Sora, held out his arm to Yana in a gentlemanly manner.

"Yeah..." Yana's cheeks turned bright pink, but he slipped his arm into Sora's.

The four happily made their way into the theatre that they'd be sitting in, it was to be for a real life play, and it was fairly exciting for Yana and Kira. Seeing as how they'd never been to a play before, and with so many rich, respected, or famous people wandering the scene, the two could barely contain their excitement. Finally, Yana and Sora managed to get Kira and Niku to sit down in their seats before the play started. Yana settled down next to Sora, smiling sheepishly at the taller boy. Kira sat in between Niku and Yana, giggling and talking with the three boys rapidly, almost to the point where everything she said made no sense.

"Shh, Kira, the show's about to start." Sora said calmly.

"Okay." Kira leaned against Niku slightly and smiled contently, ready to watch.

Yana glanced at Sora, seeing the reflection of what was happening on stage in the frames of his glasses, but that wasn't the only reason he stared at the black haired boy. Sora was, in a way, like his boyfriend, but they hadn't gone to that level of confessing their love, or the want of being together. Sora suddenly glanced his way and forced Yana to pry his gaze off of him to look back at the stage. Although, he swore that he heard Sora snicker a little, causing him to look back at him. Sora was still looking at Yana, a gentle smile on his face. Yana blushed lightly and looked down at his hands that were now folded in his lap. Sora reached a hand down to grasp the blonde haired boy's, smiling ever so evilly, Sora leaned in to kiss Yana's cheek, near the earlobe. A small gasp came from Yana and he looked back at Sora, they stared at each other for some time, that when they finally looked away, there was quite a lot of commotion.

"Huh?" Yana looked around.

"Intermission!" Kira said, "I want to go meet a few of the rich people, let's go Niku!"

With that, the two scampered away into the massive crowd. Sora and Yana decided to go to the bathroom, mainly Sora decided, he told Yana that he wanted to talk to him. So, they hurried into the men's bathroom, and stopped, utterly impressed by the expensive looking restroom.

"Wow....when they say Royale, they mean Royal." Yana looked around slightly, then let out a small squeak when he felt Sora wrap his arms around his small waist, "S-Sora?"

"Don't push me away....please...." Sora whispered lightly.

"I wouldn't." Yana replied quietly.

"I want...you...to be my.....lover." Sora said faintly, softer than even a whisper.

"W-what?" Yana began to fidget slightly, wanting to face the taller boy.

"Will you?" Sora set his chin on Yana's left shoulder and closed his brown eyes slowly. "Will....will you be my lover?"

"Sora..." The boy glanced back at the black hair that covered the other's eyes, then he let a wide smile play out on his lips, this was exciting beyond all measure, "Of course I will!"

The brown eyes opened and looked up at the green eyes that were shining happily at him, Sora smirked and kissed the fluffy haired boy. An announcer suddenly came onto the intercom, causing the two boys to jump slightly.

// "The intermission will be over in 5 minutes, please return to your seats." //

"Guess we should get back!" Yana grasped Sora's hand and pulled him along.

They went back to their seats, Kira and Niku were waiting. Kira opened her mouth to speak, but stopped once she saw that Yana and Sora were holding hands. She looked at Niku and they both smirked playfully.

"So....what'd you two do?" Niku questioned.

"Cuddled." Yana stuck his tongue out at Niku and they all snickered.
