

In This World That I Rule

By EightBelow0

Submitted: July 6, 2004

Updated: July 6, 2004

Its not to long just read it.

Provided by Fanart Central.

<http://www.fanart-central.net/stories/user/EightBelow0/4748/In-This-World-That-I-Rule>

Chapter 1 - In This World That I Rule

2

1 - In This World That I Rule

Life is a tree that has no branches. A stick with no purpose. And yet very rarely, this stick will spring forth a single branch. A branch that gives hope. The kind of hope that makes life worth living. Though there are very few trees with the strength it takes to grow and support this single branch. I know it doesn't seem like much work but it requires of the tree (us) a great deal of time and care to keep this branch (love) alive. In a world full of branchless trees, the few with them really stand out amongst the rest and bring forth a certain blissful state of being that everyone benefits from. But there are also those who are opposed to these feelings of joy, of happiness. These are the thorned trees that have tried to develop branches and yet failed to do so. Now they are left with the scars of failed relationships which later develop into thorns. They then try to spread their sadness to their fellow trees; either those with a branch or those without.

To all good things, bad things will bring destruction. I am one of those bad things. Here to bring order to a world of disorder. That's the way it has to be to keep everything balanced. Nothing out of place. Constant sorrow is the seed which brings forth life; the beginning of the tree.