With paper and powder and whispered words
And a gleam deep in his red stone

He grew a garden
A gaffer could envy

With paper and powder and whispered words
And a gleam deep in his red stone

He sailed a swan
Past the curve of the sky

With paper and powder and whispered words
And a gleam deep in his red stone

He sent a dragon roaring
Across the Burglar's lawn

With paper and powder and whispered words
And a gleam deep in his red stone

He made silver spears
Shriek of battles past

With paper and powder and whispered words
And a gleam deep in his red stone

Laurelin's own flowers
Fell towards our faces

With paper and powder and whispered words
And a gleam deep in his red stone
He did this,
Gandalf,
The fire-master
