1 - Untitled

In every silent whisper
In every darkness falls
A shadow cast from this love
A breath upon these walls
The wind that whips around here
Is breaking down this cage
I built so sturdy round this heart
They say it can't be saved
I dream of your caresses
Eyes mirrored within my own
Looking rapt upon desire
A safely silent moan
I will not let you hear
The secrets in my soul
The need that is a weakness
For I am much too cold
And like the wind that blows here
Destruction in its wake
So be the love if `twas released
Yet my heart you'd forsake
I cannot say `I love you'

No matter how I want

For wanting is not welcome here

With your heart as the taunt

You would not offer freely

All that this mind requires

And I won't think with this heart

Or gift you those desires

Just know that once I loved you

Yet did not know the spell

To come undone enough to try

Yet all the same I fell
