The night was clear no clouds within miles of the hidden leaf making a special kinochi happy. Staring out a window her shirt hanging down to upper thigh reviling her moonlight skin showing what a beauty she was underneath all her shinobi wear. Her hair standing out among the white skin. She was absorbed in the full moon shining down upon the people of leaf. That she had not even hear her front door open. A guest had arrived and something up his sleeve to make the moonlight flower scream his name all night with out end. This is the silver haired scarecrows idea was being put into motion.

He used every skill he had to be able to sneak up on some one of equal power to his own. He removed his headband and placed it in his pouch of weapons along with his protective gloves a smile unseen through the mask but the glint of pervertedness in the dark night eyes of his. He stuck his head around the corner to see his deiser his need his love. Her form unmoving the full moon gave her more of a angelic glow under the moonlight. He smirkes and removed the cloth over his lower face to revile what he had hid from her all this time. With stealth he made his way to the woman sitting in the window he reached a hand out to grab her and pull her to him. She gasped when she hit the cloth of his vest looking up with powder blue eyes. To see her kakashi standing hands wrapped around her with out that dreaded mask present. She parted her pale pink lips to say something when another pair of lips covered hers with lust and passion. Where her pulse was already excelerating past normal beats.

Then as he dispracted her with kisses his hands worked at her white underwear trimmed with black lace. He removed the undergarment with ease reviling her womanhood below.
