Fake

You hide behind your pretty mask

Pretending to be some one else

You strip away all that you are just to fit

Never break free, never show the other side that's you

Hide away from all your real feelings

Hide away all that you are

You think you're perfect, but how can you know?

When you don't even know yourself

You turn your back on everyone who's not the same

You say you just don't want to be a freak

But the truth is you're scared

Scared, of who you might become

But than again, you should be scared of who you have already become...

Hide away from all your real feelings

Hide away all that you are

You may think this is you

But you're lost, confused

You don't remember who you are

You've lost yourself in your desperate attempts to be some one else

Some how you've washed away who you were meant to be

You're no one, you're fake
