Wolf Queen

Queen of wolves is she,
Majestic and ever free.
Old and wise, cunning and sly,
She assembles her pack under the night sky.
In hunting as a pack they all excel,
From rabbits to caribou with just smell.
Silent and stealthy, they stalk their prey,
Bringing it down amongst the snowy spray.
The battle was brutal, many wolves are down,
Their queen now lies still on the ground.
The rest gather around, heavy in the heart,
But they must go on and make a new start.
