1 - 1!!

"CRASH!!!" A large rock crashed through the glass ceiling. Raccoon looked up. He knew who it was. But he didn't feel like doing anything about it at the moment. He knew that Nexx would take care of it. Sure enough, a few moments later, Nexx came up the stairs.

"They're back again, huh?" he said with a smirk. "You'd think that they'd learned by now."

Raccoon looked up through the hole in the ceiling.

"Usually they come down sooner," he said quietly. "Maybe they've actually thought about it this time."

"Doubt it," said Nexx, leaning on the wall.

Sadly, he was right. Up above, on the roof, the ninja gang was going over their plan to rescue the stolen Kitten for the last time.

"Remember, after Cat jumps in, Spoon and I will follow. Then, Blazen and Ruler will come in and we'll start. Got it?"

Doom looked intently at Assistant ninja with an exited look in her eye.

"Um, yes, but...I just have one question..."

Assistant looked down at her feet.

"What do I do?"

"You go around the back and get the Kitten. You can contact Luster and Haxor when you get there.

Make sure no ones around before you do."

Doom looked back into the hole.

"No mistakes this time. This time for sure!"

Cat jumped through the hole. He landed softly on the floor, and then got into ready position. Doom and Spoon came soon after, following suit. Blazen and Ruler came afterwards. Then they dove in, head first, landed in the official ninja stance and immediately jumped into action.

Cat was sprinting across the room, dodging all of Nexx's attacks with his cat-like reflexes. He was going to make it. He touched the doorknob and....

KABLAAAAAAAAAMMMMMMM! Trick doorknob. An exploding trick doorknob. The ninjas were blown out of the open roof, and Assistant, who had just reached the back of the building, started back around to the front after seeing-and hearing-her fellow ninjas go flying out of the roof.

2 - 2!!

After a harsh landing, the ninjas all met up. While Doom and Blazen discussed a new plan, Assistant bandaged Cat's face.

Their mission was to rescue a Kitten that their arch nemesis, Nexx had stolen from a nice old lady in town. It was a very valuable kitten, as Doom suspected, because it's collar had diamonds and pearls imbedded into it.

Doom was a nice girl, who always got good marks in the Ninja Academy. She had short brown hair and mysterious eyes.

Cat was half cat (hence, his name) and he was very stubborn. He looked a lot like Doom, except his hair was darker and shorter.

Spoon was the kind of Ninja who focused mainly on physical attacks. She loved her phone more than anything in the world, except her friends.

Ruler was a mysterious Ninja. He didn't like very many things, except ice cream, candy, and sugar.

Blazen was a special kind of Ninja. Most people said he was a demon of some sort, but his comrades describe it as 'a fire scroll gone wrong'. He didn't think that bursting into flames when he sensed danger was that bad.

Assistant had dark blonde hair and awesome Judo skills. She was younger than the other ninjas in the group.

3 - 3!!

Soon, Doom and Blazen had thought about their plan so much that their brains hurt. Blazen suggested that they go into town and buy food, and that gave Doom an idea.

" THAT'S IT!!!" She yelled. "I KNOW WHAT WE NEED!!!"

Everyone gathered around and Doom told them her idea. Apparently, there was a special ingredient on a cake called Mind's Eye that could turn people invisible for 24 hours, and Doom thought they could use it to sneak past Nexx. Everyone agreed it was a good idea, so, Spoon went into town to buy the cake.

When she returned, Blazen suggested that everyone should have some so everyone would be invisible. But Cat messed it all up.

"Caaaaaaaake..." He said in a raspy voice.

Everyone stared at him.

"CAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAKE!!!!!!!!!!!!!" He shrieked. "CAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAKE!!!!!!!!!!!!!"

Suddenly, Cat lunged at Spoon and snatched the cake from her hands. He ran up the nearest tree and sat on a high branch, clutching the cake. Then, he smashed his face into it. Cake was smeared all over his clothes and hair. Then he disappeared.

Everyone gasped and looked at where Cat was just moments before.

"What's wrong? Why are you all staring at me?" Cat's voice said.

There was a thump and the grass was pressed down by an invisible force.

"You're invisible." Ruler said. "You just ruined our entire plan, Blockhead."

"Whaddaya MEAN I'm invisible?" Cat asked.

"Weren't you listening?" said Ruler. "The cake had some special icing called Minds Eye that makes you invisible for 24 hours. Invisible means 'Not able to be seen with the eyes' or 'Impossible to see as a result of magic or pseudoscientific processes'."

"I know what it means." Cat grumbled.

After everyone had calmed down, Blazen and Doom developed a new plan.

"We'll do the same thing as last time, except we'll have three enter points: the ceiling, the back, and the front door. Cat will go in the usual way, the ceiling, with Ruler and me," Doom said. "Spoon will go through the front door, and Blazen and Assistant will go the back way. Cat will grab the kitten while we distract Nexx, and then we get out."

4 - 4!!

The next morning they all got up early and set off for Nexx's base.

When they got there, they all got in position. But after about 2 seconds, Cat got impatient.

He sprung into action, jumping down through the roof, bouncing off one wall and dashing for the door.

He stopped in front of it, wondering why no one had stopped him.

"Oh yeah," he thought. "I'm invisible."

Doom and Ruler jumped through the roof and shoved Raccoon into a random sack they found on the floor. Then they threw the sack out the window. Nexx, who had heard all the commotion, ran up the stairs, only to be attacked by Spoon who had just entered the building. It turned into a graphic ninja battle that involved pillows, pans, a lamp, and two ladders.

Meanwhile, Cat snuck across the room to the stairs. He found a door at the end of a hallway and cautiously opened it.

At the back of the building, Blazen and Assistant were puzzling over the lock on the back door. Assistant read and re-read the chapter on locks in the Ninja Handbook, but nothing worked.

Cat snuck through the door. The Kitten was in a small pet carrier, at the back of the dimly lit room. Cat took a careful step towards it, then grabbed the pet carrier and dashed out the door. He passed several Surveillance Cameras that he had never noticed before, but it didn't really matter because he was invisible.

Assistant and Blazen had given up. They sat on a rock near the building and sighed. They were very mad at the lock, so finally, they went back home.

Meanwhile, Spoon, Ruler and Doom were still fighting Nexx. Doom noticed a small pet carrier floating across the room and new their plan had succeeded. She grabbed the other two and started running towards the exit. Nexx, who didn't know about Cat being invisible, ran down the stairs to go get another associate to help him, when he saw the open door that led to the room where the Kitten supposedly was. But when the pet carrier wasn't there, Nexx knew he had been Bamboozled.

"I've been Bamboozled!" He yelled. "Get those ninjas!!"

So, 5 of his other associates chased after the 3 ninjas and the Kitten, only to be caught in a trap Assistant and Blazen had set for no reason just before they left.

The ninjas ran into the forest to where they had regrouped before, and sat down to catch their breath. It must have been 24 hours, because Cat started fading in until he was completely visible. After calling Assistant and Blazen on Spoon's ninja phone, the ninjas set off into town to return the Kitten to its owner. Cat, who could hold it in no longer, started crying. They waited 2 hours for Cat's tantrum to stop, and walked back home, happy that they had finally completed the mission after trying 18 times. But they knew that soon enough, they would have another mission to go on. That night they had a party to celebrate the completion of their mission, and then they went to the movies. Everyone lived happily ever after, except Nexx, who was still disappointed that he had been Bamboozled.

THE END!!
