(The person that died is Jack Spicer from Xiaolin Showdown)

Jack Spicer might have been a momma's boy and an insect, but he was a good "evil" boy genius. He died in honor to his family and I wished I took his place in the battlefield. Though he died of being attacked by Kimiko and Raimundo, I feel I had to have taken responsibility for my actions and protected him like a good friend would do at a time like that. If I were to take a moment in his shoes I would just work my hardest at what he did best: making robots. That's what Jack did, even when he was the one that was confused.

He worked hard at a lot of things. Though Wuya put him down, and Chase wanted to squash him, Jack would ignore it and keep fighting. I believe that if anyone tried hard enough, they could be Jack's best friend and he really needed that.

He was today, he was tomorrow. Though Jack is gone he's still with us inside our hearts somewhere. He was like a bud in the sun about to bloom into a flower. Farewell. Jack Spicer October thirteenth

The end of my eulogy.

p.s to you readers: NO MY TEACHER ISN'T RELATED TO MICHEAL JACKSON (lol)
